CANADA-JAPAN TRADE DISPUTE IS ENDED

Peace Move By Ethiopia Reported INDEPENDENCE BASIS OF ANY LEAGUE TALK

Reports From Addis Ababa Say Delegates Authorized to Discuss Terms, But Settlement Must Remove All Italian Troops From Emperor Haile Selassie's Country and Provide for Indemnity; London Observers See Mussolini's Position Growing Weaker

Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Dec. 27.—Reliable sources disclosed to-day the Ethiopian delegation to the League of Nations has been authorized to discuss peace.

Addis Ababa, Dec. 27 (Canadian Press from Reuter's).—Emperor Haile Selassie was reported to-day to have drawn up terms by which he would make peace with Italy.

These terms were said to include the withdrawal of Italian troops from Ethiopia, the recognition of Ethiopia as a sovereign state, and the payment of an indemnity by Italy.

BOUNDARY COMMISSION

The Emperor also was reported to have asked the boundaries between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies be delimited by a commission appointed by the League of Nations.

It was stated the Emperor was ready to pledge that Ethiopia would seek foreign advice and economic administrative and financial assistance, with Italian influence barred.

An Associated Press dispatch said that while reports said the delegates to the League had been given authority to discuss peace, it was officially denied the Emperor was offering peace terms or that he had agreed to the points outlined.

It was stated the Emperor insisted first on Italian withdrawal from Ethiopia.

London, Dec. 27 (Associated Press).—Responsible sources expressed the belief to-day that the move to impose embargoes on oil and certain other materials to Italy was dead and will not be revived.

Present sanctions against Italy, said authoritative sources, are proving more effective than was anticipated.

ITALY SENDS THREE MORE DIVISIONS

Canadian Press from Havas Rome, Dec. 27.—Three new divisions are to be rushed to the Italian army in east Africa. It was rumored here to-day. The east African force now totals about 300,000 men.

Minister Sees Benefit To B.C.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, Visits City; Two Months Since He Took Office Busiest of His Life, He Says

On his first visit to Victoria in his capacity as Minister of National Defence, Hon. Ian Mackenzie arrived here this morning to spend the day.

At the Empress Hotel he had a long list of visitors and shortly after 11 o'clock visited the Naval Station at Esquimalt and the headquarters of Military District No. 11 at Work Point Barracks.

Brigadier D. J. MacDonald accompanied him to these points. Late in the day he had an appointment with Premier Pattullo.

The minister said his visit here was purely on departmental business and to obtain views of British Columbians on matters of government policy affecting this province. His calls at Esquimalt were to meet officers of the various departments.

He will return to Vancouver this evening and leave for the east next Tuesday.

The minister said the two months since the new government was sworn in had been the busiest in his life, but he felt something of benefit to Canada had been achieved.

At the head of the list was the trade agreement with the United

FILM TARIFFS RULING SOUGHT

Federal Minister Asked to Seek Definite Policy From Ottawa

Through Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence and British Columbia's representative in the federal cabinet, the Dominion government was asked to-day for a definite ruling on the tariff against motion picture equipment.

W. T. Straith, president of the Chamber of Commerce, met the minister this afternoon and explained that with prospects of Victoria going ahead in moving picture production, the settlement of a final policy would have a stabilizing influence.

Mr. Straith explained that a temporary reduction in the duty had been secured through local efforts to facilitate bringing in equipment by interests now operating here. There was a chance of a permanent company coming and a final understanding was essential.

The minister discussed several matters of local importance. Questioned as to the status of the proposed federal building planned for the city, he said it had not been discussed by the new government up to the present time.

No representations had been made yet on the subject of opening the Inner Harbor to seaplane traffic, he said, but any submissions on the matter would receive careful attention.

States in which British Columbia was particularly interested because it reopened markets for British Columbia lumber as well as making trade in other products easier.

Favorable settlement of the trade dispute with Japan would be of benefit to British Columbia, chiefly through the lumber industry.

CONFERENCE AGREEMENT
The Dominion-provincial conference, he said, had achieved the highest degree of agreement ever known among various governments on many vital problems.

GAS DUTY CUT IS EXPECTED

Probable reduction of the duty on gasoline from two and a half cents to one cent as a result of the recent hearings at Ottawa before the Canadian Tariff Board is expected here.

British Columbia, through its counsel, C. H. O'Halloran, presented a strong plea for reduction of the duty. It is believed here the duty may be cut to the level of one cent where it was formerly.

Mr. O'Halloran returned here Christmas eve after appearing before the tariff board. He is also counsel before the B.C. fuel inquiry, which is expected to submit an interim report to the provincial government this spring.

Where U.S. Republicans Will Meet to Choose Leader

Roosevelt for the Presidency of the United States in the November election they will hold their sessions in the big convention hall identified as No. 1 in the picture above. Other points of interest in the convention city are: (2) The Mall, (3) underground garage, (5) county courthouse, (6) municipal stadium, (9) public square, and (11) public library.

URUGUAY BREAKS DIPLOMATIC LINKS WITH THE SOVIET

Passports Handed to Minister at Montevideo; Russians Accused of Helping Prepare Plots for Armed Uprising

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 27.—The republic of Uruguay to-day broke off diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

The Uruguayan Foreign Office handed passports to Alexander Minkin, Russian minister, and to the other members of the Russian legation.

The action was regarded as part of strong precautionary measures against rumors of an armed rebellion inspired by Communist organizations. Uruguay had been the only South American nation to recognize the Moscow government. The break was largely a result of uprisings in Brazil, Uruguay's neighbor, last month.

SOURCE OF INSTRUCTIONS
A Brazilian government communication charged instructions to leaders of the abortive November rebellion were dispatched from Montevideo. The chief instigator of the uprising was alleged to be Luis Carlos Prestes, (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5.)

STRAW VOTE IS ANTI-NEW DEAL

Canadian Press
New York, Dec. 27.—Opposition to the new deal, which in forty-one states gained 35 per cent over last week, stood at 58.51 per cent to-day in the Literary Digest's poll on the "acts and policies" of the Roosevelt administration.

Tabulation of 387,158 ballots, the magazine reported, showed twenty-nine states ranged against and twelve Utah and eleven southern states—in support of the President's policies. Votes favoring the New Deal were counted at 469,527 against 577,631 votes opposing it.

COMMITTEE ON CAMPS IN CITY

Experts Confer With Provincial Government on Transfer of Control

Studying the situation in British Columbia with a view to devising the machinery for transfer of relief camps from the Department of National Defence to the Department of Labor, a committee of experts appointed by the federal government reached Victoria to-day.

It consists of R. A. Rigg, former M.P.P. of Manitoba; Humphrey Mitchell, former M.P.P. for Hamilton, Ont.; and Dr. E. W. Bradwin, president of Frontier College.

They conferred this morning with Hon. G. S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, and Hon. F. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works, and with relief authorities of the provincial government. No formal representations were made on behalf of the province.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, who is visiting here, said the officials were working with all haste to effect the transfer of control.

"Abolition of the camps as we now know them cannot, of course, in fairness to the 20,000 men now receiving assistance in this way, be attempted until adequate other means of providing for these men have been devised," said Mr. Mackenzie.

The committee, he explained, has been at work visiting the camps and offices obtaining information and advice.

What the ultimate policy on the camps will be probably will rest with the national commission on unemployment to be created shortly.

E. C. MANNING IS PROMOTED

Becomes Chief Forester of B.C., Succeeding Late P. Z. Caverhill

Ernest Calway Manning to-day was appointed head of British Columbia's forestry service, succeeding the late P. Z. Caverhill.

Mr. Manning held the post of assistant chief forester under Mr. Caverhill. His promotion was announced by Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands.

Other changes in the department which may be contingent on the promotion have not been decided yet, Mr. Gray said.

Mr. Manning has been with the British Columbia department for eighteen years.

He was born in Ontario and graduated from the University of Toronto in 1912. He spent three years with the Canadian Pacific Railway forestry service and then went to the forest branch of the Dominion Government.

In 1918 he came out to British Columbia and joined the headquarters staff in Victoria. He went up to Prince Rupert for three years as an assistant forester, then being transferred back to head office.

In 1927 he was appointed assistant chief. He served as acting chief forester on several occasions during the absence of Mr. Caverhill.

Mr. Manning was engaged this year in working-out the forestry training camp scheme established by the provincial government to assist young men in learning forest work.

Removal of Surtax January 1 Affects One-half of Canada's Exports to Japan; Increase in News-print Lumber Shipments Will Benefit B.C.; Value of Yen for Duty to Be 39.5 Cents and 29 Cents

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—The trade dispute between Canada and Japan, which opened last July, will end January 1, as a result of notes exchanged by the two governments agreeing to remove the mutual retaliatory surtaxes as from that date. The notes were made public to-day.

The exchange of notes took place yesterday between Prime Minister King, Secretary of State for External Affairs, and Sotomatsu Kato, Japanese Minister to Canada.

Canada agrees to modify customs regulations respecting the interpretation of the phrase, "goods of a class or kind made or produced in Canada," reduce the valuation of the yen for duty purposes from 41.5 cents as at present, to 39.5 during 1936, on goods of a class or kind made in Canada, and to 29 cents (current rate of exchange) on goods of a class not made in Canada. It will also cancel a number of items on the list of fixed valuations for duty purposes under section 43 of the Customs Act.

These were among the demands made to the Bennett Government this year, refusal of which led to the imposition of a 50 per cent surtax on chief Canadian imports to Japan, and a retaliatory surtax on Japanese goods entering Canada.

AS YEAR BEGINS
Following is text of the government's statement covering the exchange of notes:

"The Japanese Government will cancel, as from January 1, 1936, the surtax of 50 per cent ad valorem which has been levied, in addition to the ordinary duties, on wheat, flour, lumber, pulp, wrapping paper and certain other Canadian products since July 20, 1935.

"The Canadian Government, on its part, will cancel as from January 1, 1936, the surtax of 33.1-3 per cent ad valorem which has been levied, in addition to the ordinary duty, on Japanese goods imported into Canada since August 5, 1935.

"The Canadian note further sets forth the decision of the Canadian Government, as part of its general policy on trade and tariff matters, to modify the customs regulations respecting: (1) the interpretation of the phrase 'goods of a class or kind made or produced in Canada'; (2) the valuation of the yen for customs purposes; and (3) the procedure to be followed in the event of a dispute.

Chinese Students Turned Back From March On Nanking

Government Threatens Stern Action, So Commandeered Train Stops Journey; Youths Struggle Back to Shanghai in Cold Weather

Shanghai, Dec. 27.—Two thousand Chinese students halted their 'advance on Nanking' in a commandeered train when they were seventy miles from their goal to-day.

Threatened by the government with stern measures, they gave up their attempt to reach the capital which was planned as a protest against Japanese 'aggression' and the movement for North China autonomy.

Many started for Shanghai in bitter weather which sent scores back to their homes suffering from exposure.

Their decision ended a five-day railway tie-up, which the government had attempted to terminate by sending 500 soldiers to block the commandeered train.

IN HONAN PROVINCE
Railway communications throughout Honan Province had been disrupted when another student body rushed railroad stations in Kaifeng, demanding free transportation to Nanking.

G. F. CHIPMAN LOSES HIS LIFE

Managing Director of Country Life Victim of Hunting Accident

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Dec. 27.—George F. Chipman, fifty-four, managing director of the Country Life, was accidentally shot to death while hunting rabbits on his farm at Charleswood, ten miles west of here yesterday. Discharge of a gun while he was penetrating heavy brush was said to have caused wounds that proved fatal.

The veteran newspaperman died while friends sought to bring medical aid. With a party he left his home to wage war on rabbits early in the day. In groups they were beating heavy brush when twigs became entangled in the trigger-lock of Chipman's gun, setting off a shell in the breech.

Rabbits had been attacking his trees and shrubs on his farm where he conducted many plant experiments. The shooting party was one of many he had undertaken to rid his property of the pests.

A journalist for twenty-five years active in farm organizations and a breeder of plants and fruits with an international reputation, Mr. Chipman was one of the most prominent men in farm activities in western Canada.

BORN IN NOVA SCOTIA

Mr. Chipman was born in Nova Scotia, in the Annapolis Valley. He taught school before coming west in 1903, and continued his chosen career in the classroom, near Leduc, Alta., for a year after. In 1906, he formed a connection with the journal that was to bring him nationwide attention and a year later was made editor-in-chief.

APPLE EXPERIMENTS

He died without achieving his "million dollar apple." Mr. Chipman believed a variety of apples could be produced to stand the hot, dry summer and the extreme cold of winter on the prairies. When such an apple was produced, he believed it would be worth $1,000,000, and he called it his "million dollar apple."

Vote Urged For U.S. Air Bases

Representative J. M. Wilcox
Suggests Congress Provide
For Chain of Stations

Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 27.—An effort to obtain funds to start building a chain of giant defensive air bases around the borders of the United States is planned by Representative Wilcox, Florida, Democrat, author of the Air Base Act.

Mr. Wilcox said he hoped Congress would provide more money, too, for army fighting planes and air corps personnel.

"I hope to see Congress at this coming session recognize the absolute necessity of providing funds for bringing the general headquarters air force up to the minimum of 980 planes recommended by the Newton D. Baker investigating board, for building two new air bases, and for adding enough fliers and a ground crew to man the planes and bases," Wilcox said.

"If we do that, we shall be a long way toward putting the country in a safer position in world affairs. Our position is absolutely pitiable now."

THREE KILLED BY GAS IN HOME

Associated Press

New York, Dec. 27.—A family of three was found dead yesterday, seated at a table piled high with Christmas gifts and tinsel decorations.

An open gas jet beneath a pot of coffee which had boiled over showed how the trio met death in the kitchen of their five-room apartment. They were Charles McLaughlin, thirty-four, an electrician; his wife, Catherine, thirty, and their son, Walter, two.

The bodies were discovered by McLaughlin's brother-in-law, who went to the apartment to see why the McLaughlins failed to appear at his home for Christmas dinner.

WHERE ELEVEN DIED IN ENGLAND'S WORST CRASH

For forming on the wings of the three-motored Belgian airliner, burdened it so heavily that it crashed into a hillside at 200-mile-an-hour speed near Tatsfield, Surrey, killing eleven persons in England's worst air disaster. The twisted wreckage of the demolished cockpit and cabin in the foreground indicate the terrific force of the impact, which proved fatal to all aboard. In the darkness it is believed the pilot was unable to see the hillside in time to avoid the crash.

MODERN CITY IS BOAST OF YUKON

Changes in Dawson Described: Snowmobiles and Airplanes Are New Links

Canadian Press

Dawson, Y.T., Dec. 27.—Rugged pioneers, who claimed for Canada this wilderness where thousands of gold-crazed human beings stamped in the days of 1898, pointed with pride to-day to a modern city risen from the tents and ramshackle structures in which men, and women too, tossed their fortunes to the winds as they laughed and played—and died.

Gone are the dance halls where pokes of hard-earned gold dust were squandered in "the din and glare" of frontier days and, in their stead, neat frame buildings house well-ordered business activities.

The Standard and Orpheum Theatres, the Flora Dora, Cushman's saloon—all these have disappeared. The famous M. and N. saloon is unoccupied, its raftered ceiling echoing no memory of the careless feet that tramped so gaily to the "jag-time" tunes pounded from a "music-box" that has vanished with the years.

Nearly is the only other entertainment hall remaining from stampede days—the Alexandra Hotel, remodeled and unrecognizable.

"APPLE JIMMY" THERE

Familiar faces of the gay days are mostly gone as well, but James Ogilvy, known to all soundboughs as "Apple Jimmy," who peddled his basket of fruit under the flickering lights of the noisy dance halls, remains. He operates a fruit store.

The Northern Trading Company in its original building is the last of the points where eager prospectors outfitted for their long sojourns in the wilds. Others, the Alaskan Exploration Co., Ames Mercantile, North America Trade and Transportation, Leduc, have passed out of existence and their buildings are torn down.

SNOWMOBILES AND PLANES

Gone also are the big stern-wheel Yukon River steamers which ran downstream 2,000 miles to St. Michael's on Bering Sea. Smaller sternwheelers now operate 400 miles upriver to White Horse, terminus of the Yukon and White Pass Railway. In winter, mails are brought in regularly by snowmobile from White Horse.

The airplane, too, has brought Dawson closer to the "outside." The airport is located near Rock Creek on the Klondike River, ten miles from town.

DREDGES AND PROSPECTORS

Dawson has become a modern town and the rich creeks from which it drew its fame, Bonanza, Eldorado, Dominion and the rest, are being drained systematically of their gold by company dredges; but veteran prospectors still work individual claims among the hills and more distant creeks, keeping alive the romance of the Klondike.

NEW MEDICINE AID TO SLEEPY

Treatment For Narcolepsy, Disease Marked By Sleepi-
ness, Announced

Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 27.—A new treatment for narcolepsy, a disease marked by uncontrollable desire for sleep, was announced to-day in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Successful use of a drug, Benzadrine, on nine persons each of whom fell asleep from three to ten times a day before treatment, was reported by Dr. Myron Prinsmetal of Los Angeles and Dr. Wilfred Bloomberg of Boston.

Seven of the nine were afflicted with cataplexy (rigidity of the muscles) in connection with the narcolepsy attacks, and had been victims of the disease for as much as eighteen years, the doctors said.

The doses of Benzadrine ranged from ten milligrams a day to forty milligrams three daily, depending on the age of the patient and the severity of the case.

MANY GOPHERS AUTO VICTIMS

Hawks Now Watch Prairie
Roads For Their Meals

Canadian Press

Toronto, Dec. 27.—Hawks are not bothering to kill gophers any more. The automobile is going it for them, Dan McCowan, famed naturalist, said to-day.

Years ago they used to float lazily over the prairies, waiting to pounce on an unwary gopher. Now they perch on roadside telephone poles, waiting for speeding automobiles to play the part of executioner.

It was just an example, Dan said, of how animals are going modern. Similarly, he said, magpies and crows are to be found on fence posts, waiting for the automobiles that daily slaughter several hundred gophers on the Prairies-Chicago highway.

Dan could not say why gophers never learned. They continued to play around the highways and, apparently unable to estimate the speed of an automobile, were slaughtered in hundreds.

GRAIN AND MICE

Similar evidence was to be found along the railways, he said. The mice found kernels of grain dropped by lurching grain trains. Other animals followed them, among them the squirrel.

The squirrels found, however, there were no trees nearby that offered protection from hawks. But they soon overcame that. They confined their foraging to the vicinity of telephone poles. When a hawk appeared the squirrel scampered up the pole. A score of wires prevented the hawk from reaching him.

Big Community Singing Event

Thousands About St. Paul's in London Will Be Heard
New Year's Eve

Canadian Press

London, Dec. 27.—The thousands accustomed to assemble before the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral "see the new year" this year will be encouraged to participate in organized community singing.

Before the war, when whisky was only $1 a bottle and the pubs remained open till 12.30 a.m., St. Paul's churchyard on New Year's Eve was just a vulgar bacchanalian saturnalia. Perhaps half of the assembly would be tipsy, bottles were passed from hand to hand, and the "good fellowship" was often cemented with an odd light or two.

In recent years, when licensed houses in the City area have closed at 10.30 p.m., the gathering has been sober enough, its only fault being it has made an aimless amount of noise.

The new dean of St. Paul's, Dr. Walter Matthews, has arranged that on the coming New Year's Eve community singing will be conducted before the west front of the cathedral until 11.45 p.m., and will conclude with the hymn: "Abide With Me."

This is following the precedent established at the English soccer cup final at Wembley, where community singing goes on until about the beginning of the match. The singing always ends with "Abide With Me," every member of the vast assembly rising, and the men uncovering.

POLICE SEARCH FOR SLAYER

Canadian Press

Dawson Creek, B.C., Dec. 27.—Search for the slayer of Alfred Demean, fifty-eight, continued to-day. A coroner's jury, sitting Christmas Eve, found that he had been beaten to death by a person or persons unknown.

The body, found on the roadway near his home last Friday, showed signs of a terrific beating, ten blows having been administered to the head, any one of them being sufficient to cause death. The body was marked with bruises.

Staff-Sergeant W. A. S. Duncan said the body was 700 feet away from the shack, and Demean's cap, mitts, hunting knife and other articles were found strewn along the route between the shack and the point where the body was found.

Priest Ceases To Be Bank Head

Associated Press

Ticonderoga, N.Y., Dec. 27.—Rev. Cyril P. Stevens, the parish priest who became a bank president, will "be glad to escape and become a humble parish priest again."

Father Stevens, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church here, announced yesterday he has "had enough" of the duties of a bank executive and would retire December 31 as head of the Ticonderoga National Bank.

He was elevated to the presidency last October because of the illness of President Roy L. Lockwood.

PRairie Flier Dies In Crash

K. O. Neste Killed in Saskatchewan When Plane He Built Is Wrecked

Associated Press

Eastend, Sask., Dec. 27.—Kenneth O. Neste, twenty-four-year-old garage employee, was killed yesterday when an airplane which he had built himself burst into flames as it crashed to the ground in a field ten miles south of here. Eastend is about 210 miles southwest of Regina.

The airplane flew near the farm home of S. O. Bengtson. Neste was dead when Mr. Bengtson and Allan Primrose, a hired man, reached the scene. They managed to pull the body from the machine without being burned.

Neste, who worked at a Tompkins, Sask., garage, was returning from a Christmas visit to his parents at St. Mary's Hall, Sask., thirty miles south of Eastend. He planned to visit the Bengtson home for dinner. As he circled to land, his plane crashed. It was the first long flight Neste had made with the plane he had built in spare time during the last three years. Parts of the wings were found 200 feet from the plane.

Dern Completes Reorganization

Washington, Dec. 27.—Secretary of War Dern completed reorganization of top positions in the United States army air corps yesterday with the temporary promotion of Brigadier-General Francis M. Andrews, chief of the general headquarters air force, to the rank of major-general.

Dern announced two days ago the resignation of Brigadier-General Oscar D. Westover as chief of the air corps with a rank of major-general.

Kamloops, B.C., Dec. 27.—One fatality marked Christmas in Kamloops. W. R. Ottewill, fifty-three, Canadian National Railway bridge-tender, fell down a stairway after attending a Christmas Day concert, fracturing his skull. He died in the Royal Inland Hospital Thursday without regaining consciousness.

EMPLOYMENT SHOWS DROP

"Seasonal Contraction" in Canada, But Position More
Favorable Than in 1934

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Dec. 27.—Employment in Canada showed a drop between November 1 and December 1 of 28,566, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported to-day. The total number of employees registered by 9,462 firms fell from 1,013,721 to 985,155.

The bureau described the decrease as a "seasonal contraction," and said it was the first general decline since last April. It added, "The situation continued decidedly more favorable than in any month of 1934, 1933 or 1932," and was better than that of the autumn and winter of 1931.

Manufacturing, notably of food, lumber, iron and steel and textile products; mining, communications, transportation as a whole, construction and services showed seasonal recessions at December 1, the report said. Losses in manufacturing and construction exceeded the average declines indicated in those industries at the same period of the last fourteen years, but those in transportation were decidedly below the average.

RETAIL GAINS
Logging, coal mining, shipping, stevedoring and trade reported improvement. The gain in retail establishments was considerably greater than the average season advance noted in the years since 1920, according to the report, while that in bush work was rather smaller than usual at this time of the year, partly because the weather has been unfavorable in many districts for that kind of work.

In a review of general employment conditions the bureau said the index of 104.6 at December 1 was 10.8 higher than at the start of the year and the improvement during the year drawing to a close was considerably greater than normal.

The bureau summarized conditions in the five economic areas.

"The trend of employment in the Maritime Provinces has generally been downward at December 1 in the fourteen preceding years for which data are available, but the losses this year exceeded the average declines reported since 1921," said the report.

"The index at the latest date, standing at 107.5, was higher than at December 1 in any of the last three years."

QUEBEC FIGURES
"For the first time since May 1 there was a contraction in Quebec, according to statements from 2,239 employees of 286,467 persons, 3,510 fewer than in the preceding month. Employment has shown a falling-off at the beginning of December in twelve of the preceding fourteen years for which statistics have been prepared. The seasonal shrinkage at the start of the year has been less than the average. The index declined from 105.0 on November 1 to 103.8 on December 1, 1935, when it was between 7 and 8 per cent higher than at December 1, 1934."

"Employment in Ontario showed a decrease at the beginning of December when manufacturing and construction reported large losses and mining and communications were also slacker than in the preceding month."

"On the other hand, considerable expansion was indicated in trade and logging."

BRITISH COLUMBIA
"Further contractions occurred in British Columbia in accordance with the movement almost invariably noted at the beginning of December in this record of fifteen years."

"There were gains in mining, retail trade and highway construction; on the other hand, manufacturing was decidedly slacker, chiefly in food factories, where the decline was seasonal in character. Transportation and building and railway construction also released employees."

"Smaller declines had been recorded on December 1, 1934, when the index was over six points lower. The 1,007 firms reporting for the date under review had 83,998 employees, as compared with 85,497 in their preceding statement."

CITY FIGURES
Analysis of employment in the major cities of the Dominion showed Montreal with a gain of 195 to a total of 138,249; Quebec down 179 to 12,143; Toronto down 1,088 to 123,182; Ottawa down 78 to 13,385; Hamilton down 258 to 32,232; Windsor up 456 to 16,058; Winnipeg up 1,127 to 40,299; Vancouver down 352 to 32,117.

THE MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY

MUTINEERS took the ships they sailed on and either killed their officers or set them adrift in open boats, was not uncommon up to a century or more ago. In some cases the mutineers were captured and hanged, while in others they became pirates, or privateers in the service of enemies of their country. Sometimes the outbreaks were caused by harsh treatment, but often they sprang from cupidity aroused by rich cargoes in the holds of the ships. A mutiny is supposed to have played a part in the tangled story of the Cocos Island treasure.

The mutiny on H.M.S. Bounty, however, stands in a class of its own because the world knows so much about it and its consequences. The story bulks prominently in official records, for at the time there were trials in the British Admiralty court and some executions; there have been a number of books on the incident, while the periodical visits of ships to Pitcairn Island with supplies for the descendants of the survivors have kept the link between the present and the eventful day, nearly 150 years ago, when Fletcher Christian and his fellow conspirators rebelled against the tyranny of Captain Bligh, captured the ship and put the commander and those who stood by him in an open boat in mid-Pacific with limited supplies. When Esquimaux was the headquarters of the British fleet in the western Pacific, one of the ships from time to time included Pitcairn Island in its cruise in the southern seas, taking supplies to the islanders and reporting to London on their condition.

Captain Bligh of H.M.S. Bounty was an able navigator of the old school who believed in plenty of flogging, keel-hauling and an occasional hanging of the yard-arm. He had been with Captain Cook, which in itself spoke volumes for his capacity for enduring hardship and his ability as a sailor and explorer. As crews in those days often were completed by press gangs, which often found them in waterfront dives and dens, many of them were hard characters with prison records and ripe for trouble making. Apart from this, however, Bligh believed in strong-arm methods against subordinates regardless of where they came from or whether they were good or bad. His career subsequent to the incident of the Bounty when, as governor of New South Wales, he acted so harshly that other authorities intervened and put him in prison, made this altogether apparent. It is of interest to note that he wound up as an admiral.

The mutiny on the Bounty left a trail of tragedy. The twenty-five mutineers took the ship to Tahiti, but fear of capture forced Fletcher Christian, eight of his followers, six Polynesian men and twelve Polynesian women, to take to sea again and make for Pitcairn Island. Bligh and his supporters, with consummate skill and after incredible hardship, had traversed 4,000 miles of the Pacific to Timor in the Malay Peninsula and had reported the mutiny to the Admiralty, which sent a warship to Tahiti to apprehend the fugitives. Of those who remained at Tahiti, six were tried in England and three were executed. Meanwhile, treachery, debauchery and bloodshed had taken a heavy toll from the little settlement on Pitcairn. Within a few years all of the men were dead with the exception of Alexander Smith, who took the name of John Adams, and who, on becoming the leader of the flock, taught them to read and trained them in civilized practices.

Subsequently several settlers arrived from the outside, and one of them, George Hobbs, became pastor and chief magistrate on the death of Adams. Ships from Britain and the United States occasionally called at Pitcairn. In 1830 the islanders, fearing drought, removed to Tahiti, but most of them returned. An adventurer named Joshua Hill, claiming government authority, tyrannized over the settlement for six years, but was removed by a British warship. In 1856 all of the islanders, comprising sixty married persons and 134 young people, migrated to Norfolk Island, but a few of them returned to Pitcairn. About the end of the nineteenth century it was reported that owing to intermarriage there was a marked deterioration of intellect and morals in the settlement, but since then the lot of the islanders has been improved under the supervision of the British government. The settlers are Seven Day Adventists, and the settlement is governed by a body chosen from among the inhabitants.

The mutiny on the Bounty has been again projected into the limelight of public interest by a remarkable motion picture play which is now being widely presented, and which wherever it has been shown has been described by critics as probably the most impressive production which has yet appeared on the screen. The acting is incomparably fine, while the pictorial settings have been developed with a view to historical and physical detail in such a way as to leave nothing to be desired.

Incidentally, this powerful play emphasizes the illimitable possibilities exhibited by the screen for the production of dramas based upon moving historical incidents which can not be similarly reproduced upon the legitimate stage. Nowhere but in a motion picture production would it be possible to portray the life aboard ship, the tumult of the sea and the scenic charm of the glamorous southern islands as graphically as they are portrayed in the "Mutiny on the Bounty."

WHERE WOULD THE FRONT BE?

WHAT WOULD BE THE STATUS OF the civilians of Great Britain in the event of another war? This is a topic which a woman correspondent of The Manchester Guardian recently discussed. She takes a somewhat novel attitude and says in part:

"Why should the civilian population be exempt from the horrors of war? Why should women assume that men who take the financial responsibility of their wives and children in peace time also suffer all the hardships and dangers in war time? Am I to go through the next war, as I did the last, in comparative security, able to see the progress of the war in comfort and safety from the plush seats of a cinema?

The inquiries of this correspondent raise some interesting questions. In the first place women can do much to prevent another war. They could develop a mass objective to war policies. They could say to governments that they are not to be offered up as sacrifices to the God of Mars, as human targets for the apostles of international greed—ripe fruit for those who are in the business of armament manufacture. Other reasons, by the score, could be given.

Should there be another war, however, where will the "front" be? The "front," for example, may be, as far as Europe is concerned, in a cinema near the Marble Arch, "somewhere in France," somewhere in any country in Europe. The days of burrowing underground to dodge shells have passed. The days of twelve, twenty-four, or thirty-six hour ultimatums have passed.

The "plush seats" of cinemas in many parts of the world—who knows?—may be the "fronts" of another war. Women, however, and sane statesmanship of men should be able to find a way to prevent such a calamity.

A NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENT

THE MEMBERS OF THE GYRO CLUB, one of the most energetic service organizations in Victoria, are to be congratulated on the success which marked the recent Christmas hamper campaign and distribution. More than thirteen hundred homes in the community were gladdened by the receipt of one of these well-filled packages, and when all the cash donations have been computed it is expected that the total sum will reach $5,500, an amount considerably in excess of last year. This is indeed a notable achievement.

The press report of the campaign programme on the air, and other public announcements, however, tell only a part of the story. Few of our readers realize the hard work these young men put in night after night packing the hampers. During the final days they were at headquarters laboring, like expert packers in a large wholesale warehouse, into the small hours of the morning, going home dog-tired, yet up betimes for their daily work. The public of Victoria may well take off its hat in salutation to Victoria's Gyro Club.

RARE CHRISTMAS DELICACY

WINNIPEG FURNISHES A NOVEL BUT painful Yuletide incident. It appears that one Roman Bosiak hid himself to the prairie capital from his farm at Riverton, seventy-one miles from the city, with the object of trying to persuade his wife, who had a day or two previously left his hearth in a huff, to return and call the quarrel off. Going to a Winnipeg boarding house in which his spouse had installed herself, he tried to convince her that she was wrong and he was right, but Mrs. Bosiak did not agree. Enraged over the loss of the argument, Bosiak took his wife's head in his hands and bit off the end of her nose. According to the Canadian Press dispatch recording this unusual and painful marital upheaval, the tip of the wife's nose was "pickled" and preserved to be used in evidence against the husband. Mrs. Bosiak, facially disfigured, still is under the care of surgeons, while Mr. Bosiak will have to spend three years in the penitentiary. This will give him plenty of time to realize that it would have been a great deal better for him and less painful for his wife if he had used his teeth on a steak or turkey drumstick instead of his wife's proboscis.

A STRANGE ARGUMENT

"Those who love to watch wild life know that death and suffering are to animals in a different relation to what they are to human beings."—The Bishop of Exeter (Lord William Cecil), writing in defence of deer hunting in Britain.

THE BISHOP EMPHASIZES HIS ARGUMENT with the suggestion that "if the followers of the hounds gloried in the deer's suffering, they might be degraded. But they are thinking of their horses, the hounds and themselves, and, therefore, suffer no degradation." What of the deer?

In a recent issue of The Exeter Diocesan Gazette, the Bishop commented that damage had been done by an opponent of stag hunting to the memorial window to Lord Fortescue in Exeter Cathedral. His point was this: "The window certainly could not be said to justify cruel sports. The rightfulness of such sports is indeed a difficult question. The hunted deer will not grow thin with worry and anxiety. The moment of the chase will be like the moments of his great battles. The death of the hunted deer is one of exhaustion, and it is therefore a merciful death. Weariness robs the mind of fear. I have seen many men die that death."

This attitude is not easy to appreciate. How does the Bishop know that animals look upon death differently from human beings? And what chance has the deer with dozens of hounds, men and women on horseback—well-breakfasted at the "meet"—in an open country especially selected for an early kill?

This kind of sport needs a much stronger case than that which has been presented by the Bishop of Exeter. We wonder what the deer, the stag and the fox would say for the delectation of those "who love to watch" them, if they could issue a public statement in reply.

Just Folks

by Edgar A. Guest

BOYHOOD PRIVILEGES
He was just the doting father; of his children fond and proud.
Half defending, half excusing little freedoms he allowed.
And he gave the same old reason: "I have always hoped to spare
My children from the burdens which my shoulders had to bear."
And I know that when he said it he believed he spoke the truth.
As he thought about the trials and the hardships of his youth.

"I would keep their childhood happy," he repeated, and I smiled.
For most men who have succeeded think they suffered as a child.
And I said: "I do not doubt you. In those days of long ago
You had many a little duty which your boys will never know;
But to-day you're hale and hearty and for business prime and fit.
So those hardships, you remember didn't hamper you a bit."

Loose Ends

Concerning turkey bones, as you would expect—and cannibal drums—and Mr. Beak's glow—and Miss Snipe's indignation—and Mr. Pudbury's cigars—and other simple rustic joys.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

BONES

THIS, LET IT BE understood in extenuation, is written on the morning after Christmas, very early. Did you ever write a column for the newspapers the morning after Christmas, very early? Never do it. Always have a goodly store of columns written days ahead against such an emergency, as I have planned to do every year for the last half dozen.

"Why," says the stout and eminent journalist from Vancouver, who has been spending Christmas with me, and who sits by me now, sunk in the deep complacent torpor of Boxing Day cold turkey, "why, you should have no trouble writing a column to-day. You have a wealth of material, almost an embarrassment of material. What about cold turkey? What about turkey bones? Now, there's a theme—turkey bones. Can't you see the philosophical implications of turkey bones? Everything is now reduced to bones, the whole Christmas season a mere skeleton, nothing left but the bare carcass. I don't just know at the moment what the philosophical implications are, but they're tremendous, I'm sure. Write about them. And make it melancholy. People like to feel melancholy when they have eaten too much. It gives them a feeling of virtue after the pagan orgy of Christmas, the chief Christian festival. Ah, yes, write about turkey bones and pile up the gloom."

With that, he does off, and leaves me to discover the philosophical implications of turkey bones for myself. So far, I haven't. But I know there is a deep thought there if one could only capture it. I know that you, two days after Christmas, must feel like cold turkey and wish I wouldn't rub it in. Of course, I'm going to. I'm going to harrow you with grim memories of Christmas to the bitter end of this column.

MISTLETOE

THE WORST MISTAKE we made was to provide a bugle and a drum for the little boy next door. Never provide bugles and drums. They are so persistent, so difficult to extinguish. Long before dawn of Christmas morning the shrill strains of a bugle rang out on the clear country air, and the throb of a cannibal drum came through the oak woods, as through an African jungle. The bugle still shrills. The cannibal drum still throbs. And the worst of it is that we bought such a fine bugle, such an expensive drum. They won't wear out in a day or two. They will endure for weeks, for months, even. I can see that there is going to be no peace in Saanich before summer.

The bugler assures me that he has now mastered all the bugle calls of the Boy Scouts and is particularly competent with "Come to the Cookhouse Door, Boys." But they all sound the same to us, and there is a dead monotony about the cannibal drum beats that haunts us, bores us down and drowns the first chirp of the meadow larks. It must be awful to live in Africa.

USEFUL GIFTS

THE OWNER OF THE DRUM and bugle finds it rather difficult to get about to-day. Besides the drum and bugle, slung about his shoulder, he has a revolver in a holster, and in his pocket a hammer, monkey wrench, carpenter's rule, a red ball and a collection of confectionery which is now beyond identification but gets very soft when he sits down on it for long.

A carpenter's rule, you will find, is a useful and educational tool to give any child. The little boy next door has already measured nearly everything in Saanich. He measured his sister's new doll and quickly calculated that it was thirty-two feet long, adding, in a public announcement, that it had rubber pants.

"Rubber pants," he informed Miss Snipe, the spinster lady, "wear longer, you know. That's why my sister's doll has rubber pants. Everybody," said he, looking Miss Snipe in the eye, "should wear rubber pants. They wear longer."

With that, he went off to measure Mr. Pudbury's new calf and before the day was out he had measured Smokey his dog; Miss Snipe's slipper and, finally, a prominent portion of the stout journalist from Vancouver. (He computed it at thirteen yards, four inches. I think the four inches were an innocent exaggeration).

CRAFTSMAN

BESIDES A CARPENTER'S rule, I recommend a brace-and-bit for a young man. It teaches him to be handy, to do things for himself. It develops his mind. The mind of the little boy from next door had so far developed by noon on Christmas that he bored three holes in the floor, two through the bottom of his nice new wagon, and had made substantial progress with one into the tummy of Smokey, when the latter, having no appreciation of craftsmanship refused to go on with the experiment. By all means, give little boys brace-and-bits—if they live next door. It makes their parents so happy, too.

RUSTIC PLEASURES

BUT, ON THE WHOLE, it was a very jolly Christmas out in these rustic wilds. Mrs. Noggins, who had foreseen it with a prophetic vision, got the inevitable bottle of bath salts from her son, the plumber, whose instincts even in the choice of Christmas presents are always faithful to his trade). Mr. Pudbury received his customary box of cigars from his sister and, as usual, was put out of doors to smoke them, and did so, with a fine persistence and spirit, sitting on a wheelbarrow down near the stable, perhaps with the notion that some strong counter-arsenic would help. He smoked two during the course of the day, which we all felt was a supreme gesture of brotherly love.

Mr. Beak appeared during the morning with a warm glow, which gradually increased in intensity during the remainder of the day until by night it was a resplendent spectacle, reminding you of the northern lights. Miss Snipe, who dined with the Beaks, was shocked and distressed at first, but, on accepting a thimbleful of what Mr. Beak described as non-alcoholic temperance port, she is said to have become quite human. After the third thimbleful—so we have it from Mr. Pudbury, who had it from Mrs. Noggins, who had it from Mrs. Beak—she offered to sing "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean." Mr. Beak, he understood, decided, on hearing it, that he had made a mistake in offering her any of his non-alcoholic temperance port.

But it didn't matter much what Mr. Beak thought, because he retired early, at the suggestion of his friends, after an argument with Mr. Pudbury over the Ethiopian situation and the League of Nations, which threatened at one time to become quite serious. Mr. Beak's last conscious words are reported to have been: "I'm a League man and I'll stand or fall on it." In point of actual fact, he fell on it.

On the whole, it was a nice, quiet, homey Christmas out our way. We hope it won't recur too soon. Because right now, across the fine clear air of Boxing Day, comes the shrill hideous blast of a bugle calling the boys to the cookhouse door, and through the oak woods thunders and throbs the roll of the cannibal drum.

"You know," says the little boy from next door, pressing his nose against my window, his shoulders bowed low by his heavy load, "you know, I wish next Christmas you'd give me a machine gun. This cap pistol is too small. When is next Christmas, anyways? I certainly do need a machine gun."

BARON KORANYI DIES

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 27 (Associated Press).—Baron Friedrich Koranyi, sixty-six, former Finance Minister, died yesterday evening.

Brigade Party Is Big Success

More Than 300 Mothers and Children Attend Christmas Tree

With more than 300 mothers and children attending, the 5th (B.C.) Coast Brigade annual Christmas tree party was held yesterday afternoon in the Armories.

Ernie Impett, as Santa Claus, distributed presents, fruit and candy to the children after his arrival had been announced by the brigade trumpet band.

Entertainment was provided by William Harkness, magician; John Gow, who conducted a Punch and Judy show, and pupils of Miss Mona Jewell, who presented the following dances: Irish jig, the Pearson sisters; maid and messenger dance, Kathleen Stromkins and Thelma White; skaters' waltz, the group; clog waltz, the group; sailors' hornpipe, Jean Melarath; French doll dance, Vera Pearson; haymakers' jig, the group; Swanee River tap dance, the Pearson sisters; tap dance, Kathleen Stromkins; song and dance, Ethel Stickney and Barbara Wilson; Indian dance, Elaine Ingram; jockey dance, the group; Russian dance, Thelma Whyte; tap dance, Cecile Gagnon; clown dance, the group. Sylvia Welsh gave a recitation.

Miss W. Green and Miss Irene McDonald were the accompanists.

The party was arranged by Staff Sgt. E. Blair, who was master of ceremonies, and Bombardier A. Coates, Capt. George Pauline, Sergeant W. Cartwright, Sergeant-Major Fred Williams, Sergeant-Major F. Fretwell, Lieut. Harry Howard, Major V. McKenna and the wives of several regimental officers.

SHORT STORY AWARDS MADE

Four cash awards and four honorable mentions were announced today by Miss Eugene Perry, local president of the Canadian Authors' Association, in connection with the short story contest sponsored by the Victoria and Islands branch during book week.

The winners were:

First prize, $10, Miss Valerie Tye, 2831 Douglas Street, for the story "Spring and the Possil."

Second prize, $5, Nancy Isabel Hannan, 852 Courtney Street, "The Night Before Christmas."

Third prize, $3, Don Roberts, Box 488, Duncan, "Woman with a Scythe."

Fourth prize, $2.50, Fred A. Hebdon, 2635 Mt. Stephen Avenue, "The Lost Wallet."

The third and fourth prizes were extra awards given by one of the judges. Difficulty was found in deciding between Mr. Roberts' story and the second prize winner, so the additional prize was given. "The Lost Wallet" was written by a boy working as a deckhand on a tugboat and, while an interesting story, showed carelessness in writing due to the circumstances under which it was written. The award was made as added encouragement.

The following stories received honorable mention: "Once a Worm," by Madeline D'Arcy Gilbey; "The Proposal," by Grace Isabel Cook, and "Gethsemane," by Elizabeth L. Garrett, all of Victoria; and "A Timber Cruise," by Edith M. Page, 3481 Saanich Road.

The prizes will be awarded at the next meeting of the authors' association on January 9 at the Women's Institute rooms, 635 Port Street. The best story will be published.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

TEMPLE TO A GREEK HERO

On a dusty, open space near the Acropolis, at Athens, where the ancient kings of Greece presided, stands the Temple of Theseus, best preserved ancient Greek temple in the world. Built during the Golden Age, about 420 B.C., this structure is a model of ancient Greek architecture. Its perfect proportions, its tall Doric columns of marble, and the friezes that encircle the building make it an object of study and admiration to visitors.

Dedicated to the mythical king of Athens, Theseus, who lived about 1200 B.C., and was famous for his many heroic exploits, the temple presents the stories of the most glorious of his adventures in the reliefs on the end walls. One of these depicts the story of his expedition against the Amazons, warlike women of Scythia, whose queen, Antiope, he carried away.

The stamp shown here gives a splendid view of the Temple of Theseus as it appears to-day. It was first issued by Greece in two forms, in 1927.

PHOTOS OF ACTUAL BOMBING OF DESSYE

*These Remarkable Pictures Were Flown 5,500 Miles Out of Ethiopian War Zone
Then Rushed Across the Atlantic and the Continent to The Times*

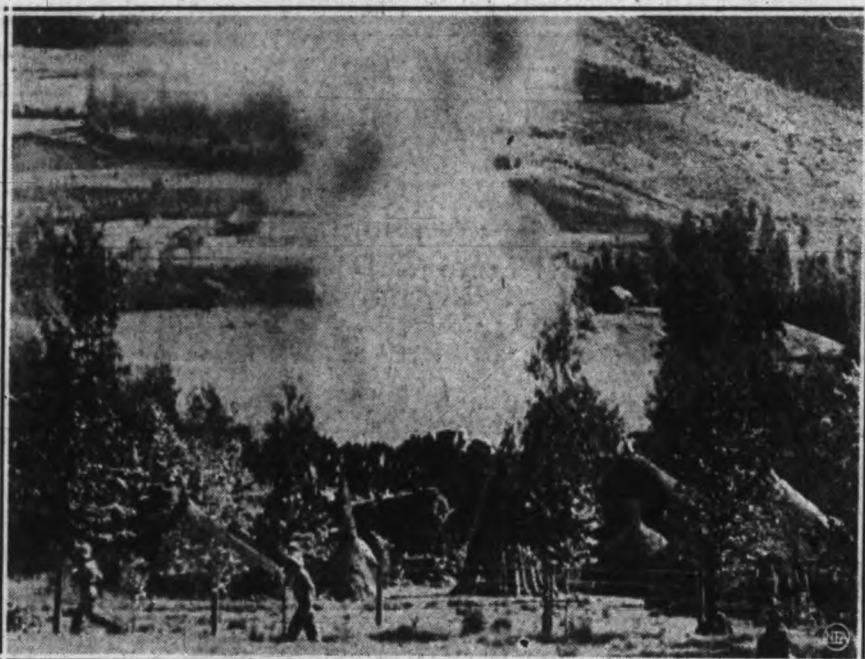

PACKED WITH DEATH AND DESTRUCTION, the missile held by the Ethiopian soldier is one of the hundreds rained on Dessye by Italian aviators. This one, however, was a dud.

THIS PICTURE MAKES YOU AN EYE WITNESS to the shower of death that was loosed against Dessye in a series of bombing raids by Italy's Disperata squadron, killing more than forty, injuring ten times that many, nearly wiping out the town where Emperor Haile Selassie made his headquarters. You see above the almost simultaneous explosion of two bombs as they landed in an open space in the village.

PUTTING UP A FIGHT, though a futile one, the skyward pointing rifles of these Ethiopian typify the courageous manner in which they sought to drive off the air raiders.

ANOTHER BULL'S-EYE for the Fascist airmen—that is the story told by the column of smoke that rises from the group of huts above, one of which had just been set afire by an incendiary bomb. In the foreground men run to aid those maimed in the rain of death.

COURAGEOUS AS A LION was Emperor Haile Selassie as he manned a machine gun and fired on the air raiders. Pictured beside his son, the Duke of Harrar, he was the target of the raid.

THE SMOKE OF BATTLE in the bombing of Dessye was overshadowed by that of buildings set ablaze by the hundreds of incendiary shells Italy's airmen loosed. Not only native huts like that above, but a United States mission hospital and the Emperor's palace were also set on fire.

WHILE BOMBS BURST around them, survivors of the Dessye raid administered to the wounded. Here Major de Fraipont, Belgian advisor to Haile Selassie, gets his wounded arm bandaged.

AS IL DUCE'S BOMBERS ROARED ACROSS THE HORIZON, the plume of smoke that rose into Africa's sunshine over Dessye symbolizes the "success" of their raid. The charred timbers of the smoldering house stand like a skeleton to haunt those who witnessed hospital buildings as well as native huts go up in flames, and heard the cries of the wounded rise above the thunder of bursting bombs.

WAR'S AFTERMATH was death for these two victims of the Dessye raid, who lie in a shallow trench awaiting burial. But Haile Selassie, the real target for the bombs, lives on to guide his country's defence.

THE DRAMATIC STORY BEHIND NEA AND THE TIMES PICTURE SCOOP

Dramatic pictures—and a dramatic story of newspaper enterprise behind them! . . . When the remarkable photographs of the Italian air raid on Dessye which you see above were laid on the desks of the editors of The Times to-day, they had reached the end of a thrilling 8,000-mile journey. Rushed by courier from stricken Dessye to Addis Ababa, the pictures were picked up there by Pilot Roland J. Falk, an English war ace, who loaded them aboard NEA's own chartered plane—the only newspaper plane operating in the war zone.

Then began a 5,500-mile flight—certainly one of the longest ever made for delivery of newspaper pictures. During the perils of Africa's rugged terrain and of uncertain darkness in a craft that was not completely equipped for night flying, Falk flew along the Nile Valley by light of the moon and on across the Egyptian desert to the Mediterranean. Landing in Athens, Greece, Falk transferred his precious pictorial cargo to a speedy Imperial Airways liner bound for Paris, where another plane chartered by NEA waited to fly them to Cherbourg in time to catch a swift express liner for the transatlantic journey to New York.

From New York, NEA rushed the pictures to The Times, enabling this newspaper to score what is certain to be regarded as the outstanding picture scoop of the year.

A most enjoyable evening was spent by the young people at the Salvation Army, Esquimalt Road, last evening. Drills by the junior and senior departments were accompanied by the band.

The senior band of the Esquimalt Salvation Army wish to thank the public for its response to its Christmas serenading, the contributions totaling $123. The band also expresses its appreciation of the courtesy shown by the officers at the naval barracks for their kindness in allowing them to visit the boats now in drydock.

The officers of the Esquimalt corps will be glad to give any information in respect to the distribution and spending of the money collected, their addresses being Constance Avenue and Esquimalt Road.

Recent Weddings

HOCKING—HORNE

Two popular young people were the principals in the wedding celebrated at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, yesterday evening at 8 o'clock, when Rev. Canon A. E. del. Nunnis united in marriage Margaret Jean (Peggy), elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Horne, of 2713 Cavendish Avenue, and Mr. Ross (Bud) Hocking, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hocking, of 583 Toronto Street.

The church was filled with an interested congregation, and the Christmas decorations of the altar and chancel made a charming background for the pretty ceremony.

Entering the church on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white chiffon velvet, modelled on simple lines. The skirt, touching the floor in front, extended at the back to form a pointed train. The bodice was fastened in the front with velvet buttons and at the neckline was finished with a turnover collar. The tight-fitting sleeves terminated in points and ended over the wrists. Her veil of white filmy tulle caught to a halo of velvet on her head. To complete the bridal attire, she carried a sheaf of Calla lilies.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Douglas Godwin of Sidney, V.I., as matron of honor, wearing a gown of pale blue lace, with a hat of velvet to match, and carried a large bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums; Miss Norma Hocking, sister of the bride, the bridesmaid wore a frock of pale green lace, with hat of silver lace, and carried bronze chrysanthemums; and by little Miss Elizabeth Poth, as flower girl, daintily in a Kate Greenaway frock of yellow taffeta, carrying a colonial bouquet of yellow narcissus.

Supporting the bridegroom was Mr. Douglas Godwin of Sidney, while acting as ushers were Messrs. Harold Horne, brother of the bride, and Bill Barrett.

Mr. F. T. C. Wickett presided at the organ rendering the wedding music.

At the conclusion of the marriage service a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where assisting in welcoming the guests were Mrs. Horne, wearing a frock of chiffon in the new blackberry shade and a corsage of violets and by Mrs. Hocking, wearing a dark blue lace dress with hat to match and a corsage of carnations.

The home was attractive, with Christmas decorations interspersed with white chrysanthemums. A three-tier wedding cake centred the supper table. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Clyde Savage, Mrs. T. S. Barron of Vancouver, Miss Betty Featherstone and Miss Winnifred Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hocking left on the midnight boat for Vancouver on route by motor for California to spend the honeymoon. On their return to Victoria they will make their home in the Oak Bay Apartments. For traveling the bride wore a brown dress, with hat to match, and a muskrat coat.

Among the many gifts was a standard lamp from the office staff of the Y.M.C.A., where the bride has been a member for a number of years. The bridegroom is prominent in tennis and badminton circles on the Island ranking third in prom-

RENDLE—CARRUTHERS

A quiet family wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Carruthers, St. Patrick Street, when their eldest daughter, Eileen Margaret, became the bride of Mr. Clarence T. Rendle, eldest son of Mr. George Rendle, Wark Street, and of the late Mrs. Rendle.

Rev. G. B. Switzer, D.D., conducted the marriage service, and the wedding marches were played by Mrs. Walter Fletcher, who also sang "All Joy Be Thine," accompanied by her husband, as the register was being signed.

Mr. Carruthers gave his daughter away and she looked most attractive in her gown of American Beauty flat crepe, cut on Grecian lines, with a slight train. Instead of carrying flowers she wore a bandeau of white gardenias at the back of her head.

Mr. and Mrs. Rendle left during the afternoon for Seattle, the bride traveling in a trim little suit of Rodier tulle, with a fingertip jacket and a fox collar, and a brown model felt hat. On their return from their honeymoon, they will live in Courtenay.

MOUNTAIN—COPELAND

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents on December 24 when the Rev. J. L. Millar united in marriage Nellie Edith, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Copeland, Saturna Island, and Frederick Arthur, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mountain of Vancouver. The bride is postmistress at Saturna, Mr. and Mrs. Mountain will reside on Saturna Island.

ENJOY LONG HONEYMOON

Honolulu, Dec. 27 (Associated Press).—James Cronwell and his bride, the former Doris Duke, heiress to tobacco millions, sailed aboard the Monterey yesterday for Los Angeles. They were accompanied by Rudolph Primi, the musician.

The Cronwells have been here four months, enjoying surf-riding and other Hawaiian sports. They are en route to their home in New York after a wedding trip around the world.

ODD FELLOWS BUSY HOSTS

Entertained Kiddies in New Auditorium; Plan New Year Party

With the completion of the new auditorium in the Odd Fellows' Building, Douglas Street, the society have launched a series of Yuletide entertainments, the first of which was the annual Children's Christmas tree held on Monday.

Victoria Lodge No. 1 on this occasion were the hosts to the children under thirteen years of age, and judging by the large number of happy youngsters who availed themselves of this opportunity the committee in charge of the arrangements have every reason to congratulate themselves on the success of the affair.

From 3 in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening a full programme was in swing, including vaudeville, concert and motion pictures, with refreshments at 6 o'clock and presentation of gifts by Santa Claus to finish the day, after which the parents were entertained to supper in the new dining-room.

Although an annual affair, this year's event was considered by the members as being the best yet, which speaks well for the committee who had charge.

Further good times are in store for members and their friends when the Odd Fellows' annual dance and card party is held on New Year's Eve.

No expense has been spared to make this equal if not better than its predecessors. No less than three separate committees are at work on the affair, one in charge of the dance one in charge of the card party and, last but not least, one looking after the refreshments.

A first class orchestra has been engaged. The caterer is already on the job and exceptionally good prizes chosen for those lucky at cards. Invitation tickets can be obtained from the secretaries of Colfax, Rebekah Lodge, Cairne, Rebekah Lodge, Victoria Lodge No. 1 and Columbia Lodge No. 2 or members of the committees.

Enjoy Concert At Orphanage

Children Give Splendid Programme of Entertainment

Children of the Protestant Orphanage yesterday evening staged a splendid concert in the institution hall before an audience of officials and supporters. The programme consisted of group singing, dialogue, a number and instrumental selections and drills, and will be repeated at 7:45 o'clock this evening.

The concert was arranged by Mrs. J. Barnes, the matron, assisted by Miss G. Guyton and Mrs. E. Harkness, who were complimented by Arthur Lee, president, for their splendid work. Miss Miriam Corfield was also thanked by Mr. Lee.

The programme follows: Christmas carols by all the children; a short welcoming message by Lily Denan; "Mr. Hardy Takes a Hand," dialogue by five girls and one boy; "The Baby's Goodnight Song," sung by the smaller boys and girls; "The Gates of His Garden," an exercise by a group of children; "Christmas Frolic," by the smaller boys; "Dolly Speaks a Piece," dialogue by five girls and two boys; "The Land of Good Health," an exercise by a group of children; "I Loved This Little Stranger," a duet by Daphne and Eileen Gill; "Holy Night," sung by a group of older girls; "Gifts of Gladness," a pageant by all the wards; "Can't You See the Christmas Tree?" by six boys; "The Kick Under the Table," a recitation by Daphne Gill; "No Little Cradle," duet by Leslie Robinson and Helen Hogan; "Their New Christmas Bells," exercise by thirteen girls; "A Hasty Cure," dialogue by three girls and one boy; "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas," duet by Ronald Gill and Charles Ellington; "Taleys Buds," sung by six little girls; instrumental numbers by Miss Miriam Caulfield and Kenneth Caulfield, and "The Message of the Stars," a drill by ten girls.

Beaux-arts Snow Ball Is Outstanding Success

CRITICS HAIL ENGLISH PLAY

"Victoria Regina." Story of Queen, Triumph For Helen Hayes

Associated Press
New York, Dec. 27. — The most eagerly awaited play of the season arrived in New York last night when Helen Hayes came triumphantly to the Broadway as the star of "Victoria Regina."

In this play by Laurence Housman of England, Miss Hayes appears as Queen Victoria in episodes of her life extending from 1837 to 1897—from the morning the princess was notified of her succession to the throne until, grayed and aged, she is wheeled to a terrace of the palace to greet her subjects.

In its episode structure the play presents Her Majesty as the good wife of Albert—devoted, admiring and, at times, just a bit frightened of him. Inevitably, the presentation must be called "charming." Miss Hayes is charming as she watches in adoration as her bridegroom swears, as she erupts in a jealous rage and puts him into forgiveness. Her playing is faultless.

The star and her able company were cheered to repeated curtain calls. Of her support, the most favored was Vincent Price, who is announced as making his professional debut as the Prince Consort. Others of excellent service were Lewis Casson, Cherry Hardy, Helen Twiss, of Montreal, James Woodburn and George Zucco. Gilbert Miller produced and directed.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

MILK REQUIREMENTS OF BABIES VARY WITH INDIVIDUALS

The object of any artificial milk formula is to offer the baby the essential food elements for growth and development and to satisfy his appetite. The latter is important, as there is no doubt but that some babies demand from birth larger quantities of food than do others. This is that personal factor which we must respect.

Ordinarily, a baby of four months will be satisfied with six ounces of formula, a six-month-old baby with eight ounces, the amount being loosely computed at two ounces more than the baby's age in months. But often the mother will discover the four-month-old mite demanding and successfully digesting eight ounces of formula.

BABY NEEDS SUGAR

There is no harm in that. Be sure that the formula has enough milk and sugar to supply the baby's protein and sugar needs and then let water be added to give baby a satisfying total.

It is possible sometimes that the dissatisfying quality of a formula is the sugar element. The baby may be getting enough in total amount, he may be getting enough milk, but still he acts fidgetingly hungry after he has consumed his meal. The mother might do well then to compare the amount of sugar she is adding to the formula and note in what way it differs from the suggested amount. Milk formulas contain sugar not because baby enjoys the taste, but because babies need sugar to supply their heat and energy requirements.

FILLED WITH PLACIDITY

A baby's natural food is breast milk and this contains far more sugar than cow's milk. Our leaflet, "Sweet Milk Formulas," may be helpful in showing the mother in what way she may need to change her formula to make it more satisfying to the baby. It may be had for a self-addressed and 8-cent stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Elder of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

The water content of any formula has a real importance, too. The baby has fluid needs which may not be satisfied by the quantity being fed him. Just the addition of more water to the proper milk and sugar content may fill him with that placidity that is ordinarily the indication of satisfactory nourishment.

To-morrow! Changes in environment spur change in handling of foods.

Over 500 Guests at Gay
Dance Last Night at Empress; Colorful Dance
Ensembles and Novel
Decorations

Snow is a rarity in Victoria but that little meteorological lack does not prevent the Beaux-Arts from staging an annual "Snow Ball" with outstanding success every Boxing Day. The time was yesterday evening—the place, the Empress Hotel—and as to the girls, they were there in force.

The ball went off with the swing that marks all the social functions sponsored by this up-and-coming group of young people, about 500 guests attending the gay affair.

STRIKING DECORATIONS

The "snow" theme was strikingly accented in the novel decorations. A realistic snow house was imposed on the green hangings at the back of the orchestra dais, with stars glittering in the frosty sky above. On either side of the stage were two most convincing real snow men. Trees covered with "snow" stood on either side of the main entrance to the ballroom, the door being outlined with cedar garlands hung with colored lights. Festoons of greenery and poinsettias outlined the walls and covered the pilasters, enhancing the festive scene and throwing into bold relief the charming frocks of the girls.

Under the direction of Miss Maureen Grute, two striking dance ensembles were staged for the entertainment of the guests. In the tap dance by Lorraine Pendray, Helen Peden, Dorothy Freeman, Laura Catterall, Pauline Hayes and Thelma Ackerman, they wore smart military-style costumes consisting of abbreviated white skirts and tunics of blue, silver and white, made with wide, blue silver-edged lapels. Their top hats were blue and they carried jaunty military swagger sticks.

In the Russian dance, "Babe" Pennoch, Faith Cumming, Mary Lindgren, Thelma Ackerman, Lorraine Pendray and Nan Eve, and their brilliant scarlet costumes with white

Tangy Sauces Enhance Many Desserts

There's nothing finer than a hard sauce accompaniment for apple dumplings or puddings when they're served hot from the oven.

By MARY E. DAGUE

MANY women—and some men, too—literally eat the pudding for the sauce, which makes it play a major role on festive days.

It is a good plan to serve a baked pudding which naturally has a tendency toward dryness with a liquid sauce. Standard cream is an excellent sauce of moderate richness that is suitable for many types of puddings of pronounced flavor. Then there are cooked sauces thickened with eggs that are richer and of greater food value than those thickened with cornstarch or flour. Although the rule is not arbitrary, egg sauces usually are served with chilled desserts and clear sauces, fruit flavored, with hot puddings.

HARD SAUCE FOR HOT PUDDINGS

Hard sauce, that rich concoction of cream, butter and white or brown sugar, is particularly good, with hot, too rich puddings. Nun's butter is a form of hard sauce, less rich and heavy because less butter is used and cream is added to make a soft, fluffy sauce.

Rich sweet puddings are best served with a liquid sauce. The contrasting flavor and lack of butter, cream and eggs in the sauce brings out the best in the pudding. Add a little hard sauce for garnish. Whipped cream should be slightly sweetened but not enough to overpower the distinctive pudding flavor. Whipped cream is often used as a fur trimming made a vivid splash of color.

Miss Doreen Wilson, a charming figure in scarlet, sang the choruses of some of the popular numbers played by the orchestra, she and the dancers in the ensembles being enthusiastically applauded.

Supper was served in the main dining-room, where the tables were bright with flowers—and a huge Christmas tree with colored lights and myriad sparkling decorations occupied the place of honor.

Responsible for the general arrangements were the members of the committee, headed by Miss Aileen Culham, the general convener, and including Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Simmons, Dr. Jack Mercer, Mr. Dick Atney and Mr. Les McMartin, to whom much praise was accorded for the success which crowned their efforts.

New Books On The Library Shelves

NON-FICTION

917.3—"A Visit to America" (A. G. Macdonell) is the account of a British humorist's first visit to America. He writes of sights and customs with a fresh viewpoint, and his comments on city, suburb and farm include places that the usual tour does not cover. It is a thoroughly good-natured book, and the writer of it seems to have like the really well-mannered guest—who chooses for discussion those things which are likely to prove congenial as topics. A certain weakness lies in the fact that the author seldom forgets that he has a reputation as a humorist to maintain, and the book is thickly sprinkled with the English version of the wisecrack, and shows a certain gusto in attempting to conceal heroic struggles to pad out a slender material.

914.6—"Spanish Adventure" (Norman Lewis). The author started on a canoe trip through southern Europe, and was prevented from going much beyond his start by drought, so he changed his plans and went to Spain by rail, where he arrived in time to see the outbreaks of October, 1934. The reader will not find that Mr. Lewis says greatly to the common store of knowledge of the countries through which he passed, nor does he pay any heed for the ordinary tourist to travel. His is no guidebook for the sensitive to follow. He has occasional clean vistas to describe and some interesting personalities, but for the most part he is on a slumming expedition into appalling places of disease, dirt and commercial immorality. A professional photographer, he provides a number of well-taken pictures.

323.3—"Crisis of the Middle Class" (Lewis Corey). As a penetrating study of the middle class changes this book is important, and its destructive criticism of Fascism is of particular interest to the sensitive to follow. He has occasional clean vistas to describe and some interesting personalities, but for the most part he is on a slumming expedition into appalling places of disease, dirt and commercial immorality. A professional photographer, he provides a number of well-taken pictures.

915.17—"This Business of Exploring" (R. C. Andrews) first answers the questions: "How can I become an explorer, and what is there left to explore?" and secondly gives a popular account of the author's expeditions into Central Asia in 1928 and 1930. It is packed with geological, geographical and scientific knowledge together with reminiscences and anecdotes all of which are extremely readable. Even the way in which hardships are enumerated tend to make the game of scientific exploration doubly fascinating.

372.4—"War: No Glory, No Profit, No Need" (M. M. Thomas) discusses education against war. It is written for the man in the street by a well-known Socialist leader. After discussing the World War as it affected soldiers and civilians, and the even more terrible results to be expected from the next war, he describes education against war, the organization of labor against war, and proposes a national programme for peace. It might be said that he touches on very little that has not been reported before, but the strength of his writing lies in his more robust treatment of his subject, and in his simple restatement of the most effective indictments that have been brought against modern warfare.

est but the Socialist alternative which the author holds out as inescapable is not likely to win readers who are not already convinced. He offers a socialism under which the old middle class of independent entrepreneurs will be absorbed in "the full collectivization and socialization of industry" and the new middle class of dependent workers will be absorbed in the community of labor.

909.4—"From Rousseau to Proust" (Havelock Ellis). This is not a rounded literary history of nineteenth century France, nor is it a critical survey of the works of a certain school of writers, rather it is the personal histories of a group of rebels against the mainstream of French literature in so far as the psychological and biographical details are available. There are six essays devoted to Rousseau, and through Ellis's intuition as much as facts given the reader comes to know Rousseau the man with great vividness. About eight other authors have essays devoted to them, including Verlaine, Henri de Regnier and Alain Fournier. The last essay is on Proust. The whole work is erudite and "superbly styled."

B—"Diary of the Voyage of H.M.S. Rattlesnake" (edited by Julian Huxley). T. H. Huxley, Julian Huxley's grandfather, was just twenty-one when he went to Australia on the "Rattlesnake" as assistant surgeon.

The voyage lasted from 1844 to 1850, and the diary covering this period has only recently been discovered. His comments on the voyage out are chiefly in connection with his investigations in marine biology, and not interesting to the general reader. Later, however, many curious incidents are recorded as the ship cruised about charting the inner passage between the Great Barrier Reef and the mainland. The commentary which the editor has interspersed in his grandfather's journal is done with admirable judgment.

947.084—"I Write As I Please" (Walter Duranty). In 1921 the author went to Russia as special correspondent for the New York Times. This book contains his reminiscences of what he saw and did there during the next fourteen years. The reader will find Mr. Duranty's record of his experiences and personal reactions under the Soviet regime a fascinating antidote for excesses either of enthusiasm or prejudice.

Local Teams Beat Vancouver In Boxing Day Sport Features

THE SPORTS MIRROR

BASEBALL EXPERTS agree that the first basemen will be heard from in 1936. Performing for his friends, Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins, a satisfied Jimmy Fox is looking forward to his finest campaign in his first season—in a Boston Red Sox uniform. Both Fox and Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, are to aim at records held by Babe Ruth. Fox has an idea that he has a chance to better Ruth's home run record of sixty in appearing in seventy-seven games at Fenway Park, with its favorable left field wall.

Gehrig seeks to equal Ruth's feat of batting in 150 or more runs in each of six seasons. Gehrig holds the largest number of runs batted in—194 in 1931.

No other junior leaguer ever hit in as many markers as Gehrig has in three different seasons. Columbus Lou drove home 115 runs in 1927 and 174 in 1930. He drove in 165 in 1934, the year in which he won the triple batting crown of the majors, and 151 in 1932, when the Yanks last topped the pennant.

Ruth never drove in more than 170 runs, and expected that figure to stand. Now that he has beaten it three times, Gehrig is in an excellent position to establish an all-time runs-batted-in total that will stand plenty of beating.

While Gehrig at the time last season struck the devastating pace that, in the eyes of many veteran critics, made him the caddy of all first basemen, he finished with a batting average of .330 and with a runs-batted-in total of 120. Those figures would make most any other ball player a star, but mean an off-season to the Yankee iron man.

Gehrig's "slump" was attributed to his long barnstorming trip through foreign lands last winter and to his annual midsummer attack of lumbago. Lou is taking no chances this winter. He thus far has kept himself comfortable at his new Rochelle home, and plans to get in several weeks of deep-sea fishing off the tip of the Florida peninsula before reporting at St. Petersburg.

Gehrig not only plans to regain the runs-batted-in championship from Hank Greenberg, Detroit, but also hopes to run his amazing consecutive game record to more than 1,800, which he can do by playing through the 154-game schedule something he has done since he launched the streak in 1925. With an increase in salary and another year of experience under his belt, Greenberg will be a champion even a Gehrig and a Fox may find it difficult to replace.

Zeke Bonura, of the Chicago White Sox, is another long-range hitter who expects to better his 1935 batting average, which was .297. Hal Trosky, Cleveland, is certain that he will regain his 1934 batting eye. The blonde Iowa was one of the biggest disappointments of 1935, when his batting average dropped to .271.

Inasmuch as he has been unsuccessful in his search for a successor, poor old Bill Terry and his 341 batting average will have to stick to the line-up of his New York Yankees for a while longer. Jimmy Collins, of the St. Louis Cardinals, wasn't at all satisfied with his 313 percentage of 1935, when he also lost his knack of batting in runs. He showed the way to National Leaguers in the latter department in 1934.

Sam Leslie, Brooklyn, wasn't himself in hitting 308 last season. Oussie Suhr, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has shown himself to be a more formidable batsman than he was in 1935, when his average fell to .272. Dolph Camilli, of the Phillies, hits a long ball, and should sweat for an average forty better than 266, which is what he hit last term.

Rangers Beaten By Four Goals In Soccer Tilt

Stewart, Morgan and Payne Net Goals to Give United Shutout Victory

Victoria Leads Intercity Loop

Victoria United moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Intercity Soccer League by chalking up a great 4 to 0 victory over the young and speedy Vancouver Rangers at Athletic Park yesterday afternoon. The holiday match proved a stubborn, hard-played engagement and the 1,550 fans saw a Victoria team start slowly and then dominate play for seventy of the ninety minutes. The United led 1 to 0 at half-time.

For the entire second half and three-quarters of the first it was all Victoria. The Rangers started off like a prairie fire in the first ten minutes, but the heavy kicking of the local halves and backs soon slowed them up and from then on they were the under dogs, although it must be said they never quit trying. Up until the final whistle the mainland youngsters kept fighting but they were up against a better club on the day's play.

The Rangers trotted out the youngest club to ever perform here in an intercity match and they certainly put on the pressure at the start. After taking quite a while to settle down the Victoria eleven turned in a good performance. For about ten minutes in the second half the United had the Rangers hemmed in their penalty area and shots were being driven at Goslie Glog like pellets from an air rifle. He spent the last half of the game as a member of the Rangers and his diving save of a shot from George Payne late in the second half was one of the highlights of the match. It was a beautiful bit of action.

HELL OUTSTANDING
The individual star for Victoria was Gordie Bell, smooth, sharp-shooting, cool-headed outside right winger. He was at his best and his brilliant crosses, corner kicks and snap shots drew hand after hand from the spectators. The whole Victoria team worked in well together and every member deserves credit for the win.

Playing with the Rangers, on the half-back line, were Harry Storey and Eddie Gibson, formerly with the Victoria West and Victoria City clubs, respectively, in the local first division. They performed well in the wing half positions.

The Victoria goals were scored by Gordie Bell, smooth, sharp-shooting, cool-headed outside right winger. He was at his best and his brilliant crosses, corner kicks and snap shots drew hand after hand from the spectators. The whole Victoria team worked in well together and every member deserves credit for the win.

OPENING GOAL
Opening goal of the match came after thirty minutes. Watt slipped the ball to Stewart who flicked it to Bell. The right winger lifted the ball across the goalmouth and Payne slapped it into the net. Just before time John Johnson had only DeCosta to beat and could have practically walked the ball into the net, but he shot and was wide.

Jock McAvoy Is On High Seas

New York, Dec. 27.—Jock McAvoy, British middleweight and light-heavyweight champion, came down with a case of homesickness yesterday with the result he and his wife sailed unexpectedly for home on the 11 De France.

JACK ADAMS GETS RILED

Charges Majority of N.H.L. Teams Not Playing Offensive Hockey in Detroit

Detroit, Dec. 27.—Manager Jack Adams, Detroit Red Wings, is aroused by the unusual number of tie games his players have encountered this season, said yesterday evening he had served notice on five National Hockey League squads they must play an offensive game here or the Wings will "cease to furnish entertainment" for their home game crowds.

Adams declared Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers were the only members of the league that had played an open game on Detroit ice.

Adams was particularly incensed over the Chicago Black Hawks-Red Wings game last Wednesday night, in which Goslie Normie Smith of the Wings had only twelve saves, two of them long, looping shots from well up the ice. The Hawks converted two second-period rushes into goals to beat the Detroit team 2 to 0.

Jacobs Fined And Suspended

Cuban Boxing Commission Peeved at Promoter Over Louis-Gastanaga Bout

Havana, Dec. 27.—Mike Jacobs, New York boxing promoter, was suspended for six months yesterday by the Cuban boxing commission for his failure to fulfill contracts in connection with the Joe Louis-Isidore Gastanaga bout and was fined $500 for "defamation of Cuba."

Louis and Julian Black, one of his managers, also drew six-month suspensions for failure to "comply with a contract signed with this commission on November 25, 1935."

The commission took formal action because its contract with Jacobs provided he present to the commission yesterday a list of the participants to fight here December 29. His failure to provide the list was considered a breach of contract.

Jacobs, who visited Cuba last week to see what the "political conditions" were, announced a postponement to February 2, then after his return to New York announced the fight had been cancelled.

A THERMOMETER REGISTERS COLDER WHEN THROUST SUDDENLY INTO HOT WATER!

The ordinary thermometer operates on the principle of expansion and contraction under changes of temperature. Heat expands, cold contracts—hence an increasing temperature causes the mercury or alcohol in the bulb at the bottom of the thermometer to expand. As this liquid expands it forces its way up the thin tube. The more it expands the higher it goes—and the temperature can be accurately read by the graduated scale.

Yet, strange as it seems, an ordinary thermometer will register colder when placed suddenly in hot water, and warmer when placed suddenly in cold water. This is due to the fact that when the change in temperature is sudden, then the glass bulb reacts first with the sudden application of heat the glass expands, this increases the capacity of the bulb, and consequently the mercury runs down. As soon as the heat is conveyed through the glass to the mercury, of course, the mercury expands and shoots upwards until it registers the proper temperature. Likewise with the sudden application of cold the glass contracts first, making the reservoir smaller and forcing the mercury up.

It is just a matter of seconds, however, before the mercury contracts and falls.

A locomotive puffs four times with each complete revolution of the driving wheels. The wheels on an average passenger locomotive are seventy-three inches outside diameter. At fifty miles an hour they make about 230 revolutions per minute, and the engine gives off 920 puffs of smoke and steam. Freight locomotives, with smaller wheels, puff even faster.

DETROIT WINS HOCKEY GAME

Defeats London Tecs 1 to 0 in International League Engagement

Detroit, Dec. 27.—Donnie Hughes's section-leading Detroit Olympics took a breather today preparing for their third game in four nights against Windsor Bulldogs in the Canadian city Saturday.

Olympics played their second game in successive nights when they edged out a 1-to-0 victory over the strong London Tecumseh sextette here yesterday evening. Wednesday they dropped a 3-to-2 decision to a rejuvenated Pittsburgh squad in the smoky city.

A goal by Art Birow early in the third period was the only score in yesterday evening's tussle.

The victory increased the Olympics' margin to six points over Cleveland in the western division and advanced their point total to twenty-four, three more than the Syracuse Stars, who set the pace in the eastern section.

Campbell Forbes Converts Both Scores as Victoria Reps Win 10 to 3

Calland Scores For Mainlanders

Victoria's scarlet harriers looked forward to their second and final game in the McKeechie Cup rugby series in Vancouver on January 11 with high hopes to-day. Yesterday, as the darkening gloom of early evening spread over the pitch, the hard-fighting Capitals, who took their breaks when they got them, left the field with a 10 to 3 victory over Vancouver in the city's first game of the Big Three schedule.

Victoria and Varsity are now tied with a victory apiece over Vancouver reps.

A good crowd watched the locals beat the Vancouver team which, with the exception of occasional flashes of fast rugby, failed to show much of the drive which has characterized most invading Mainland fifteen.

The play was scrappy most of the way. On their own mistakes, bad passes and streaks of lethargy the Vancouver boys deserved to lose.

A slippery ball and heavy pitch made speedy rugby difficult, but conditions did not account entirely for the slowness to which the game degenerated at times.

But whatever the game lacked in smoothness, it made up in ruggedness as the rival backs closed on one another and forwards tangled in the loose.

PLAYED WELL
Ted Colgate, making his debut on the team, turned in a very satisfactory game as fullback, clearing nicely and stopping several dangerous attacks, while Paul Rowe was a power on the defence and gained well on the attacks. "Buz" Brown, playing his second game of the season, warmed up as the match progressed, while "Biker" Appleton, the other new recruit, did some useful work, particularly on clearances.

Fleming and Turgoose, insiders, were handy on the sporadic local attacks until Fleming sustained a knee injury that slowed him up.

Wally Stipe played his usual steady game and was about a stand-off for Goepel, slight and clever Vancouver scrum half.

The local forwards turned in their customary good game, with Campbell Forbes, Alex Briggs and Dan Dowell particularly fast in the loose.

HOW THEY SCORED
Vancouver scored first on a three-quarter run started by Roxborough and completed by Johnny Calland, who went over at the corner. "Buz" Brown cut in from a five-yard scrum to smash his way over for Campbell's equalizing tally, and Campbell Forbes kicked the convert to put the locals ahead before half time. About five minutes from the finish, Paul Rowe snaggd a high pass to run twenty-five yards for Victoria's last tally, and Forbes added the extra points.

Rowe knocked on as Vancouver punted down on the first attack. Turgoose secured from the scrum and kicked clear.

The visitors flashed away on a pretty three run. Roxborough opening the movement and passing to Kinninmont who drew his man and gave the ball to Coverton. Coverton gained the local five-yard line and went down. Kinninmont was hurt in the play but remained in the game.

The Mainlanders stayed in Victoria's ground, forcing a ten-yard scrum. Calland ran back a local clearance and the Terminal City held in the Capital's territory. Colgate cleared and the local forwards forced back to midfield on dribbles.

The visitors swept back under Coverton's high punt and returned when Fleming cleared.

MISS KICKS
The Vancouver insiders fumbled on a run ten yards from Victoria's line and Forbes broke through to gain midfield. Vancouver came right back on a forward rush to Victoria's fifteen-yard line. Rowe cleared and grassed Cleveland, Vancouver back, before he could get a kick away, Fleming secured and punted into Vancouver's twenty-five for the Cape first attack. Vancouver was penalized for interference when Colgate returned a kick, put Forbes's at-

Montreal Hockey Fans Riot As Toronto Defeats Canadiens

Delay Game By Littering Ice With Bottles

Twenty-minute Halt as Spectators Protest Penalty; Leafs Win 2 to 0

Maroons Trough N.Y. Americans

Toronto 2, Canadiens 0.
Maroons 2, Americans 1.

Canadiens have been drawing poor crowds in Montreal this season but if all their fans were as enthusiastic as those who buy the cheap seats in the rush end things would be different.

The rush ends staged a young riot yesterday evening when Referee Al. Smith penalized Walter Buswell for tripping Bill Thomas. Toronto Leafs, and the game was held up twenty minutes while the ice was cleared of debris. Bottles, empty and broken, were the chief contribution of the irate fans.

Toronto won the game 2 to 0 to give George Hainsworth his fourth shutout of the season and the third in four games. Victory left Dick Irvin's team four points up on Montreal Maroons who whipped Americans 2 to 1 in a fast game at New York. These were the only contests scheduled in the National Hockey League yesterday evening. Charlie Conacher and Buzz Boll got Leafs goals.

Russ Blinco, blond center, and Gus Markar started for Maroons at New York. Both their goals came in the second period. Old Harry Oliver counted for Americans.

TRIES BY BROWN AND ROWE GIVE RUGGERS MATCH

tempt for goal from the resulting kick was wide.

Vancouver worked back toward midfield, where Referee McMillan called them up again for interference. Appleton was wide on an attempt for goal and Vancouver touched down.

Acland was temporarily hurt as Vancouver forced to midfield. Roxborough secured and punted down. He needed down and blocked Colgate's return for a scrum.

VANCOUVER TRY
Vancouver clean-headed and Roxborough started a run before giving the ball to Ferris. Ferris drew his man and passed to Acland, who streaked down the wing and went over near the flag when Pete Turgoose missed his tackle. The try came about twenty minutes from the start. Murray missed the kick from a difficult angle.

Vancouver opened up a kicking attack that gained them lots of yardage but left them without the ball when they were in scoring positions.

Roxborough started to go through himself on a clever broken field run but slipped before he could evade Colgate. Fleming was hurt on a dribble and left the field.

Turgoose intercepted Kinninnon's pass to Acland as the Terminal City backs swung away again and Colgate finally cleared.

COVERTON GOT AWAY ON A WING RUN and passed inside to Goepel, who went over between the posts, but the players were called back by the linesman for running out. Fleming returned to the game.

The local backs repulsed three more Vancouver thrusts before Forbes and resultant centre was cleared by Stewart.

For the next fifteen minutes Victoria kept up a bombardment of the Rangers' goal. The locals forced a corner and Glog tipped Bell's header over the bar for another flag kick. This time Payne sent in a low drive. Morgan hooked it into the corner of the goal. Glog made a desperate dive in an attempt to block. Victoria returned play from the kick-off and Glog threw himself across his goal to push Payne's driving drive behind Bell's corner kick resulted in a mad scramble in the Rangers' goal and the fans got really worked up over the action and excitement.

Sooty Stewart finally made it 3 to 0 when his shot from near the penalty line struck Cowan and deflected into the corner. The Rangers rallied and DeCosta picked off a high shot from Wilkinson that was traveling in under the bar and cleared. With time drawing near Stewart made it 4 to 0 when he took a long pass from Payne, steadied himself, and a neat Glog with a waist-high drive.

Al McKinnon refereed. The teams follow:
Victoria United—DeCosta, Esler, Gibbons, Williams, Robbins, Boyd, Bell, Stewart, Watt, Morgan and Payne.

Rangers—Glog, Esley, Cowan, Storey, McGill, Gibson, John Johnson, Wilkinson, Gray, Morley and Jack Johnson.

Briggs broke down the field on a good dribble.

Normington and Calland swung back on a kicking rush that ended at Victoria's twenty-five. Calland tried a cross kick on the next play and Fleming ran it back.

Rowe secured from a scrum on Vancouver's twenty-five, circled his own backs and crashed through to the corner flag, where Vancouver gained a scrum.

Brown stood way back from the pack and took Stipe's pass on the run when Victoria heeled. The local stand-off veered into the close pack and smashed his way over near the corner and the score was tied.

Stipe juggled the ball for Campbell Forbes on the kick but Forbes managed to drive it between the posts to put Victoria ahead.

Calland and Coverton both started away on dangerous runs before the half ended.

The Mainland forwards went flat as the second half opened, but the backs got away on some nice kicking attacks that kept Colgate busy.

Rowe stopped Coverton on a good wing run and Harry Peard brought down Calland when played veered to the other side.

Victoria swung away on a three-quarter run with Stipe, Brown, Fleming, Rowe and Appleton handling before they reached Vancouver's twenty-yard line.

The local forward at scrum on the Terminal City ten-yard line and Shaw was hurt. Vancouver's scrum held for dear life as Victoria came back.

MISSILES FIELD GOAL
Brown tried a field goal in front of the Mainland posts, but was wide. Colgate returned the ball when the visitors got the twenty-five kick away.

The visiting forwards woke up to initiate a dribble, but Fleming returned the ball with a kick to midfield.

The local backs raced down on a pretty run that ended when Fleming went down with the ball on Vancouver's twenty-five. The Mainlanders bundled back to midfield and forged into the local ground on loose plays.

Colgate cleared with a penalty kick and Victoria stormed down on a forward dribble.

The visitors swarmed back and held on Victoria's ten-yard line until Appleton kicked clear. The same player relieved nicely again as Vancouver came back.

McKedie tried for a field goal as the Mainlanders pressed again, but his effort was wide.

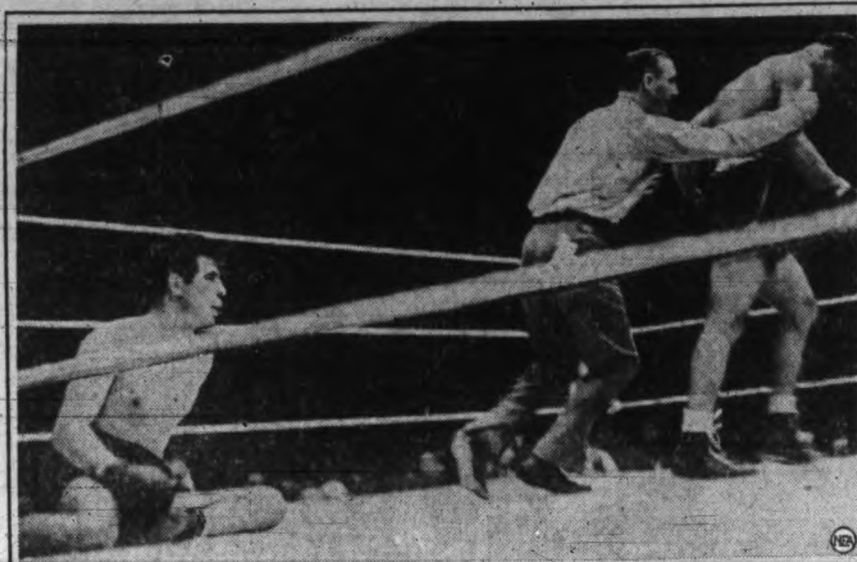

Colgate relieved when Vancouver punted back the twenty-five kick and the ball went out at midfield.

ROWE OVER
Fleming secured from a scrum just in the Vancouver ground and passed to Rowe, who ripped through the Terminal City backs and raced over between the posts. From the sidelines it looked as if Fleming's pass was forward, but the referee let it go and Campbell Forbes converted to make the score 10 to 3. The try came about six minutes from time.

Victoria smashed right back from the kick-off, but could not break through.

For the remainder of the game the teams played hard in gathering darkness but no further score was made.

STEVENSON IS WELL AHEAD

Rides Four Winners at New Orleans to Run Victories For Year Up to 200

New Orleans, Dec. 27.—Charles Stevenson, nineteen-year-old Boise, Idaho, jockey who a year ago was almost unknown to the turf, practically clinched 1935 United States riding honors yesterday when he rode four winners at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans.

With one of his most brilliant exhibitions of horsemanship, Stevenson ran his total victories for the year to 80. Meanwhile, his nearest rival, Wayne Wright, Rexburg, Idaho, again went without a winner at Tropical Park and found himself trailing the young apprentice by eleven with only four days of competition remaining.

With the exception of Mullet, held at 2 to 1, all of Stevenson's mounts paid good prices. Sleepy Joe returned $6.60 straight, Miss Twinkling, $14.20, and Big Torch, $38.80, after his unexpected triumph. Stevenson also was in the money in two other races.

The other fixture will bring together Emmanuel Baptist and the Centennial eleven on the lower ground at Central Park, with Fisher officiating.

The matches will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Lake Hill line-up follows: Kitchen, Little, Maine, Cullen, Hunt, Underwood, Speller, Hayward, Dunn, Harper, and Simpson. Reserves, Coles and Newman.

With only ten minutes of the first half to go, Spencer, Saints' new outside left, equalized from a scramble in front of the net.

At half-time the score stood 1 to 1 and play was very even in the second half, without either team being able to get a good chance. At one stage Findler and Hunter tangled and several other players joined in, but tempers soon calmed.

George Anderson, Royals, had his leg injured by an accidental kick from McMurdo and went to outside right, but resumed his usual right-back position in the second half.

Mainland Club Play to 1 to 1 Deadlock in Intercity League Football

Vancouver, Dec. 27.—St. Salvours and New Westminster Royals each gained a point in the Intercity Soccer League standings after battling to a 1 to 1 draw yesterday before 1,800 fans at Con Jones Park.

It was a splendid game, keenly fought throughout, with Lusk, Turner and Harvey shining for the Royals, and Gardiner, West and McMurdo starring for the Saints.

Shortly after the start Turner almost put the Royals ahead when he charged Alsbury in the Saints' net, but the goalie held and just managed to clear. Just afterwards, however, Findler snapped the ball into the goalmouth and Jeworsky gave the New Westminster team the lead with a splendid effort.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAMS TO MEET

Play in the second half schedule of the Sunday School Football League will open to-morrow with two matches carded. The Metropolitan eleven, initial half champions, are billed to oppose Lake Hill on the upper grounds at Central Park. P. J. Woodley will referee.

The other fixture will bring together Emmanuel Baptist and the Centennial eleven on the lower ground at Central Park, with Fisher officiating.

Nourse Sets Up Cricket Record

Scores 231 For South Africa Against Australia in Test Match at Johannesburg to Break Former Mark of 204; Springboks in Good Position For Victory

Canadian Press
Johannesburg, Dec. 27.—Humiliating Australia's noted slow bowlers, Dudley Nourse, twenty-five-year-old Natal cricketer, created a record to-day by scoring 231 and put South Africa in a fair way to force a victory in the second test match which concludes to-morrow.

The Springboks were finally dismissed in their second innings for 461 runs and when stumps were drawn the Aussies had scored eighty-five of the 369 runs required to win, for the loss of one wicket. The home players made 187 in their opening innings, Australia replying with 250.

Before 10,000 spectators Nourse topped the 204 made by G. A. Paulkner at Melbourne in 1911, which stood as the highest score ever made by a South African in test play against Australia. His feat was all the more notable as it was made despite a badly worn wicket, which gave the Aussie trundlers much assistance. Bruce Mitchell was the second highest scorer with forty-five, while R. J. Crisp added thirty-five.

McCAHE-TATS-WELL
E. L. McCormick, the only really fast bowler on the touring side, took three wickets for 129, and C. V. Grimmett, goosy specialist, captured three for 111. When play closed Stanley McCabe was making a great stand for Australia, being unbeaten with fifty-nine.

LETTERS TELL APPRECIATION

Gyro Hamper Fund Receives Flood of Messages of Gratitude For Work

Just what the Gyro Christmas Hamper Fund has meant to the less fortunate families of the city and district is graphically told in the pile of letters of appreciation which are mounting up at the drive's headquarters.

One typical letter addressed to "Santa Claus, at Gyro Headquarters, Victoria."

"Dear Santa Claus—We thank you very much indeed for the lovely big hamper brought us to-day, filled with everything so good and Christmassy. We all gathered round to unpack it."

"We believe it came from our Heavenly Father through you."

"Last week we accepted our neighbors' invitation to hear your concert over their radio. We enjoyed them very much and were impressed with the thought that you must be spreading the spirit of 'goodwill to men' wherever the radio can be heard."

"Dear gentlemen, May I use my pen to tell you the great things you have done for unfortunate people."

"I did not know where the Christmas dinner would be coming from this year, we are so up against it, so you can imagine how happy we are about such kindness."

"We certainly appreciate your kindness, and we hope we will have steady work next year, and then we can repay what you have done for us."

"May God the Giver of all good gifts richly bless you."

"May God bless you in all your wonderful work for the less fortunate."

"At the time the hamper was delivered I was too astounded to express my appreciation to the gentleman who carried it in with such cheery smiles and courtesy."

"As one opened the hamper it just seemed to exude the spirit of Christmas."

"It was the right thing at the right time, and we certainly appreciate it."

"We appreciate the unselfish service of your club members."

"I don't know what we would have done but for your kindness, as we are a large family to look after (ten children)."

"When one knows that the hamper was sent with the genuine good wishes of his fellow Canadians one gets a joy in receiving it and feels that he's not forgotten by those who are in more fortunate positions."

"Kindly accept my heartiest thanks for your box of Christmas staples. No one who has not experienced the usefulness of an empty pantry for two years can conceive any idea as to the gratitude and joy experienced on the unexpected receipt of such a gift."

"The wonderful co-operation in sending out happiness and cheer into so many homes..."

1,413 HAMPERS SENT OUT

The Gyro Christmas Hamper Fund sent out 1,413 hampers to needy homes in the city, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

Financially, the drive was a complete success, donations meeting all the obligations of the fund. Well over $5,000 was received.

The club intends to use the cash from promises which are yet to be made good towards sending out invalid hampers to still more homes.

The fund is still appealing to all who make pledges during the radio broadcasts and at other times to fulfill those pledges as soon as possible.

The fund's headquarters at 915 Yates Street, will remain open until January 1. After that date the office of the drive will move to an office above the Marquette Library on Fort Street, with a new telephone number, Empire 1012.

There is still a great deal of work in the matter of bookkeeping to be done before Harold Butters secretary-manager of the campaign finally declares the whole drive wound up.

Boys' Parliament Ex-premier Here

"The Tuxis Older Boys' Parliament is gradually working its way into the centre of the picture, as far as boys' work in the province is concerned," said John Windbank, ex-premier of the parliament at a luncheon meeting held in Spencer's dining-room to-day.

"And persons looking for help to solve difficult problems are coming to us for assistance," the ex-premier said.

Mr. Windbank commended the twelfth parliament for the fine way in which it had battled through its difficulties and for the work it accomplished.

He also pointed out that the boys' parliament was no place for shirkers, as everyone would be obliged to give all he had if they were to accomplish anything.

Premier Bruce McLaughlin was in the chair.

MARKET NOTES

A car of unwrapped Newton apples arrived in town to-day. They will be cheaper than the wrapped Newtons.

A shipment of cranberries was received on wholesale row to-day.

Sweet potato prices advanced 25c a box to-day. The rise is due to the fact that the field stock of this vegetable has been used up and there is nothing left but storage potatoes.

Mr. Holland was a Cornishman by birth and lived in Morris, Manitoba, for many years before coming to Vancouver Island. For fifteen years he engaged in farming at Keating and took a keen interest in affairs of the municipality, serving for several years as a school trustee.

He is survived by his widow; one sister, Mrs. A. W. Moody of Winnipeg, and five brothers, Albert E. and J. N. Holland, Victoria; William H. and Jobe Holland, residing in Manitoba, and Thomas H. Holland, Edinburgh, Scotland.

SAANICH FUND WORK SUCCESS

Hampers Sent Into Over 500 Needy Homes; More Yet to Go Out

In more than 500 homes in the municipality of Saanich Christmas Day was brightened by hampers sent out through the efforts of the Saanich Welfare Association Hamper Fund. Still more hampers will go out to other homes to make New Year's Day a day to be remembered.

Officials of the fund said this morning that a short supplementary list of families had been compiled, whose names had not been recorded on the list for distribution at Christmas time, and that hampers would be forwarded to them before January 1.

The more fortunate people of the municipality and also of the city and other districts responded in a wonderful manner to the fund's appeal, and through their generosity there were few Saanich homes for which Christmas Day meant disappointment.

Reeve William Crouch himself personally supervised the work of the fund, and gave greatly of his time and effort to contribute to its success.

COLMAN STAR AT DOMINION

Hero of "Bulldog Drummond" Roles in Well Cast Film of Monte Carlo

Not since his "Bulldog Drummond" roles has Ronald Colman had a part so particularly suited to his talents and a story so in keeping with his flair for the suave and debauch as twentieth century's "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," which opened today at the Dominion Theatre.

Romance and comedy go hand-in-hand in this picture, in which Joan Bennett has the leading feminine role. Cast in important roles are also Colin Clive, Nigel Bruce and Montagu Love.

Ronald Colman plays an impoverished Russian Prince who goes to Monte Carlo with his meagre savings and runs the stake up to 10,000,000 francs at baccarat, breaking the bank at the Sporting Club.

He returns to Paris, divides half his winnings among his friends and then uses the remainder in pursuit of romance in the person of Miss Bennett.

One of the highlights of "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" is the playing of the song, "The Moon Is in the Sky," composed by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.

Colin Clive plays Miss Bennett's companion in intrigue, while Nigel Bruce enacts the role of Colman's servant and friend.

Stephen Roberts directed "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo." The production was under the personal supervision of Darryl F. Zanuck.

The second feature at the Dominion is George O'Brien in "Thunder Mountain."

WHAT SUIT TO ESTABLISH?

This Burning Question Is Answered for Contract Players by a Famous Bridge Expert

By WM. E. MCKENNY

Louis J. Haddock, president of the American Bridge League, brings out a very good point for the amateur, which is also a good lesson for some experts. The beginner has been taught, when establishing a suit, to try to establish the one with the most cards in it.

For example, in to-day's hand there are four spades in each hand and only seven hearts in the combined hands; therefore, most beginners would try to establish the spade suit.

Haddock, however, says, "First count your tricks. You have three clubs, two diamonds, and two spades, making a total of seven sure tricks. But you need two more to fulfill your contract."

Today's Contract Problem
South is playing the contract at four hearts. Should he take the spade or the club finesse, or could both be obviated?

Let this be your rule—establish the suit first that will give you the most tricks or the needed tricks to make your contract.

In this case, it is the heart suit that has to be established first, as establishing the spade suit will give you only one additional trick.

If you start the heart suit as soon as you win the opening club lead, you will be able to set up the needed two tricks for your contract, before losing control of the suit that the opponents are trying to establish.

What Will We Do With 15-Year-Old Daughters?

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, but the most acute problem in America to-day—the one that provokes the most rights and causes the most tears to be shed—is not our foreign policy or how to balance the budget, but whether fifteen-year-old girls shall be permitted to have dates.

Every day the postman fairly staggers to my door under his load of letters which importune me to help settle this burning question. Mothers by the hundred write that they don't know what to do with their Sadie or Lily or Gwendolyn. She is only fifteen, a mere babe in mother's eyes, yet she wants to step out with the boys. And when mother won't permit it, she regards mother as a grinding tyrant and goes about with the air of a martyr.

Mother considers fifteen entirely too young for a girl to think about boys. Nice girls didn't go out alone with young men in her day until after they were nineteen or twenty, and what the younger generation is coming to, wanting the privileges of grown-ups before ever they have cut their wisdom teeth, goodness only knows. Nor does she know how to stop Sadie or Lily or Gwendolyn from going out when Maud and Susie and Polly are off to the movies and fraternity dances with Tom, Dick and Harry.

And Sadie and Lily and Gwendolyn write, with the paper blistered with their tears, of the cruel and inhuman way their mothers are treating them in depriving them of all the joys of life for no other reason than because they have the misfortune to be only fifteen. Of course, poor Mother means well, but she is terribly old, all of forty-one or forty-two; and she is old-fashioned and behind the times in her ideas; and she just doesn't know how things have changed. She just isn't modern.

Maybe, writes Miss Fifteen, girls didn't have dates until they were old maids of nineteen or twenty when mother was young. Maybe girls were so dumb then that they didn't know how to take care of themselves and had to be kept at home for fear of getting lost, strayed or stolen. But, y'know, things aren't that way now! A girl of fifteen knows her way about, is perfectly capable of taking care of herself, and there isn't any sense in a mother not letting her go to places with the boys and have some fun while she is still young enough to enjoy herself. Anyway, "All the girls are doing it, and it makes a girl look ridie," for her mother to keep her tied to her apron strings.

So the argument goes, with much to be said on the mother's side and something to be said on the girl's side. Naturally, those of us who belong to the older generation will agree with the mother in principle. Fifteen is too early for a girl to "set out," as the old phrase used to go. We feel that her thoughts and interests should still be those of childhood instead of being preoccupied with matters of sex and sentiment. And we know only too well that in spite of fifteen's boasted sophistication that she is, in reality, as ignorant of the world as a babe unborn, and as little equipped to protect herself as a lamb in a lion's den.

But it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us when we have to deal with the modern youngster. We have to scrap many of our theories of family discipline in handling them. The heavy parent role is played out, and even mother cannot assume that she always knows best in a society whose rules have all changed since she was a girl.

Hence to positively forbid a girl of fifteen to have any dates, and to refuse to let her go occasionally to the movies or a school party with some nice lad is simply to precipitate a worse evil than the one parents fear. It breaks down all confidence between them. Nine times out of ten it makes the girl a liar and a cheat, because she does not meekly give up the pleasure she craves. She fibs about spending the night with a friend and goes on blind dates with strange boys. She meets on the street corners the boys her parents will not let come to the house.

So, inasmuch as you cannot keep your young daughter from playing with the boys, in a world that is full of the male species, it is the part of wisdom to let her amuse herself with the boys you know and under your eye rather than sneak off with some unknown to an equally unknown place.

Another thing is that every fifteen-year-old girl is boy-crazy, and if her parents refuse to let her go around with them they simply aggravate her malady, because she idealizes every pimply-faced youth into a hero of romance and imagines herself in love with every hobbledehoy. The only way to make girls take boys calmly is for them to associate freely together and get each other's number. That makes Tom, Dick and Harry the commonplace mortals they are and nothing to get excited over.

Finally, girls at fifteen nowadays are as old in worldly wisdom and sophistication as their mothers were at twenty, and they are far better able to take care of themselves than the old-fashioned girl was. The movies have got in their work.

So, when Sadie and Lily and Gwendolyn clamor for their night out now and then, and the right to go with the Boy Friend to the movies, mother is wise if she doesn't clamp the lid down on them too hard.

Uncle Wiggily And Eddie's Engine

By HOWARD E. GARIS

Eddie Longears was a little rabbit boy about whom I haven't told you very much in these stories. One reason was that Eddie was a very quiet bunny, never saying much or doing much. He was very fond of reading books and when he wasn't in school he was studying.

Eddie will be very clever when he grows up," the Lady-Mouse Teacher in the Yellow Tree School often said to him. "He will surprise us, I'm sure."

This time to make the other rabbit children think Eddie was much smarter than they were, and they would ask him: "What are you going to be when you grow up, Eddie?"

Sometimes he would say he was going to be a fire rabbit, or work on a trolley car and ring a bell.

"Eddie is mechanically inclined, my dear," Uncle Wiggily would say to his wife. That means he liked engines and all sorts of things that went with a wheel, a bang or a roar. So it isn't any wonder that for Christmas one of Eddie's presents was an engine.

It was the kind of an engine that went rolling over the floor or ground when a spring inside it was wound up with a key. Some of the rabbit boys received for Christmas engines that ran on tin tracks by electric batteries and they had headlights and everything.

But the trouble with engines like that," said Eddie, "is that they can't run on anything except the track. Mine will run anywhere, here in the bungalow or out in the woods."

This was quite true, for Eddie's engine was like those queer jagers called tanks, and some of you may have toys like them. The toy tanks, like the real ones, could go up hill or down hill and they could even go upstairs if the stairs weren't too high and steep. So Eddie had lots of fun with his engine that was strong and powerful like a tank, and often he would take it outdoors to play with.

"Isn't your engine like mine?" asked his little boy rabbit, for Eddie took it out in all sorts of weather.

"Oh, no, daddy," Eddie would answer. "My Christmas toy tank is a strong tank that it would break right through a snow drift."

"Well, maybe so," said Mr. Longears, and then for a time he thought no more of Eddie's engine, but it was time to twinkle his pink nose and go adventuring.

WORRIED ABOUT EDDIE came back from adventuring one day, not having found any because there was a very heavy snow storm, his wife met him at the door and said: "Oh, I'm so worried! Eddie went out to play before it began snowing and he has not come home, and now the snow is very deep."

"With whom did he go playing?" asked Mr. Longears.

"He took his Christmas toy tank engine with him," said the lady rabbit. "Oh, I wish I knew where he was!"

"I'll go look for him," said Uncle Wiggily. It was getting dark but, putting on his big rubber boots, away through the snow hopped the daddy rabbit. He looked all over for Eddie, but didn't see him. It grew darker and darker. The snow

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1935

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology. Another of the rarely fortunate planetary governments guides human destiny as the great draws near its close.

Women are especially fortunate under this way, which makes for lasting love and all the finer things of life.

This is the luckiest of wedding days; success and enduring romance are indicated. Middle-aged as well as young people are to benefit.

There will be a marked tendency to seek love and friendship in coming months, as there will be a subtle foreknowledge of tremendous events to unfold and change the world.

Planning is well directed to-day, especially whatever concerns building or construction is likely to succeed. Engineers and architects are subject to influences of great promise.

This is an auspicious rule for signing any sort of a contract and especially fortunate for persons of the stage or screen. Theaters are to have a red-letter year, it is forecast.

More in sinister mood seems to permeate more war excitement. There will be unexpected movements of troops, but some sort of surprise will result.

A sudden death in Europe is to be of great significance. Speculation may be fortunate but the wise will avoid risking their money on this day probably will be studious, reticent and really unusual in intellectual culture. Subjects of the sign of Capricorn may be subject to depression as well as enthusiasm.

Catherine Maria Redgwick, author, 1789, celebrated this day as a birthday.

FIRE IN THEATRE

St. John, N.B., Dec. 27 (Associated Press).—While an audience was engrossed in watching a fire thriller on the screen a real fire broke out in the empty balcony of the theatre here yesterday evening. Firemen entered, did their job and departed without any of the patrons being the wiser. The damage was slight.
